Ray Evans Player of the Month

Ray Evans has been selected the Georgetown Chrysler Raider's Player of the Month for December.

Evans has just had an excellent month as have the Raiders. Georgetown has played nine games in December and came out on top in eight of them.

Meanwhile Evans has been on a tear as he is now among the league's top scorers.

When the month began Evans had 19 scoring points, eight goals and 11 assists. With one game remaining to be played in December Evans had 38 scoring points; 13 goals and 25 assists.

Last year the Raiders big line was composed of Evans, Tom Daley and Steve Blundy.

It was the only Raider unit that stayed together throughout the campaign.

The line started the season together this year, but early in the schedule Blundy was injured and just recently rejoined the lineup. Evans and Daley on one of his wing's for most of the games in December, but he had someone new and different on the other side.

Recently Gerry Inglis was asked which one of his Raiders was playing the best.

"Evans had just been playing excellent hockey," the coach said. "He is carrying the puck up ice well and always getting back to help out the defencemen."

Evans' biggest night of the year was actually cut short. Against the Fort Erie Mavericks on that eventful night that they left the game early, Evans was on a tear.

The centreman had six scoring points when the Mavericks put an abrupt end to the contest midway through the second frame.

Evans now joins Juri Kudravos and Ray Tonelli as Players of the Month. Tonelli was named for October and Kudravos took the honor in November.

Because the Raiders had such a good month there were several players who received serious consideration for the award.

Goaltender Peter McDuffe played his best hockey of the season as he was just outstanding in the games he played in.

Winger Patrick "Hat Trick" Maloney also had a fantastic month and was the team's top goal getter.

Rookie Terry Porter also played his best hockey of the season during December. He and Evans lead the team in assists with 25 apiece.

Congratulations to Ray Evans for being named the Raiders' Player of the Month.
