Halton police plan traffic tickets for kids

Halton Regional Police are issuing a form of traffic ticket to bicyclists and pedestrians under the age of 16 who are observed committing a traffic violation.

The tickets are issued to draw parents' attention to the fact that their children are not following safety practices when riding their bicycles or walking along the street, Safety Officer Raj Swaminathan said. The ticket is issued to the child, and the parent must sign it and return the ticket to the police station within a certain period of time.

With regard to bicyclists, tickets to cyclists are issued for failure to have the proper reflectors on the bicycle, and other infractions, such as two people riding the bicycle. Ten-speed bicycles are required to have reflectors on the pedals and on the frame.

TICKETS ISSUED

While the tickets are issued mainly to cyclists and trail bike riders, pedestrians who disregard safety regulations can also receive a ticket. The police department keeps a copy of the ticket on file, and if the offence is committed a second time, Constable Swaminathan said, the name of the offender is turned over to the juvenile officer to handle as he sees fit.

"Subsequent offences of this nature may lead to charges being laid," the ticket notes. There are no fines attached to the issuing of a ticket to a child under 16.

According to a survey conducted by the police department 4,548 children in Halton Hills own bicycles, and 1,814 children ride their bicycles to school. The highest percentage of these children are in grades three and four.

Constable Swaminathan said he would recommend that, although the responsibility for ensuring that children are aware of safety rules and regulations lies mainly with the parents, the schools should be teaching a certain amount of the subject as well. He recommends at least two to three periods strictly on bicycle safety during the spring term.

"If the schools want to have any bicycle rodeos, or any assistance in drawing up some kind of program on bicycle safety, we are prepared to assist them in any way," Constable Swaminathan said.

Lightweight packing: key to easy traveling

Experienced globe trotters prefer traveling light. No one likes to be weighed down with heavy suitcases that have to be dragged from hotel to hotel, city to city.

One solution is to pack as few pieces of clothing and accessories as possible. And even those should be lightweight.

Women travelers never want to be without their key personal care companions—a hair dryer and curling iron.

And now the newest compact models can even be packed right in the handbag. Norelco has a mini collapsible curling iron called Curly Q Compact that weighs only eight ounces. It's 10 1/4 inches long when open; a mere 6 3/4 inches short when collapsed... so it fits almost anywhere.

It has a six-foot swivel cord to avoid tangles, and a safety heel rest to prevent the heated wand from touching counter tops.

Curly Q Compact is styled in cream with chocolate brown accents.

And it has dual voltage for curling power from Paris to Pago Pago. It'll be the nearest little travel mate you've ever met.

THE PERFECT TRAVELING COMPANION for enjoyable, hassle-free vacations is the Curly Q Compact Curling Iron from Norelco. Light and collapsible, it fits almost anywhere, so you can tote it along for touch-ups wherever you may roam.
