Not guilty plea in bike deaths

An Etobicoke youth pleaded not guilty in Milton provincial court Thursday to a charge of dangerous driving arising from an accident last fall in which two Toronto boys were killed.

Timothy Wayne Young, 18, of Etobicoke, is currently on trial for dangerous driving and four other offences under the Highway Traffic Act, after two boys were killed when the mini-bike they were riding collided with a car being driven by Mr. Young on the 1st Line, south of Highway 7, Sept. 3, 1978.

Andrew Taylor and James Fraser, both of Toronto, were pronounced dead on the scene by Dr. David Vanderbent, who lives in the area. Dr. Vanderbent testified that the road is a narrow, gravel road and in poor condition.

Robert Mairs, who also lives in the 1st Line, said, "In my opinion, the road is not safe—it is not wide enough." He said the accident occurred near the bottom of a moderately steep hill, and deep skid marks from Mr. Young's car started just over the crest of the hill, and were in the middle of the road.

Mr. Mairs said he has seen a number of near accidents on the stretch of road where the accident occurred in the three years he has been living there. The only eyewitness to the accident was Billy Fraser, 8, brother of James Fraser, Billy
