Following a lengthy but apparently unavoidable delay, Halton region has finally decided against purchasing domiciliary care services from the new Acton senior citizens residence.

The region's health and social services committee last week recommended against the purchase, noting that the region already has service agreements with seniors' residences in Acton and Burlington.

"Those two residences are able to accommodate the number of people applying for assistance at the present time," health and social services administrator Rennie Vivian told the committee. "Nineteen people are currently being assisted financially." Mr. Vivian explained that his recent illness, which forced a lengthy absence from his duties, resulted in a substantial delay between the time he was first contacted about the possibility of purchasing services from the new Acton residence and the time he was able to evaluate the idea.

Mr. Vivian suggested that, in future, the region may further consider purchasing services from a variety of senior residences which will gradually increase in number "so that patients can be placed as close to their homes possible." At that time, he said, the region may wish to enter into agreements for the provision of accommodations.

Ron Chapman, superintendent of special education, said the intent of the motion, as he sees it, is that since such health-care and counselling professionals are not involved directly in education, the money should not be coming from the education budget, but from the other ministries.

Trustee Bill Priestner expressed his concern that by seeking funding from these other ministries, the board would also have to abdicate its control over these functions to the ministries.

"It's been my experience that he who wants pays, and he who pays, controls," he said. The motion was passed by a large margin.

Additional funding sought for staff

The Halton board of education is seeking additional funding from the ministries of health and community and social services for the use of non-educational personnel such as social workers in special education programs. Trustees Jackie Cutmore and Betty Fisher made the Save $500 on a Honda Civic.

One of the reasons why Honda Civics have become the best selling small cars in Canada is because they come with almost everything on. Now the cars with almost everything on have something off. Right now, while 1979 supplies last, manufacturer's previous suggested list prices have been reduced by $500 on a Civic Sedan or CVCC, and $400 on a Civic Hatchback or Station Wagon. Imagine that, $400 or $500 off and they still come with almost everything on. Front wheel drive, independent suspension, tinted windows, reclining bucket seats, carpeting and much more are all still on. And all still standard. And every Honda model rates among the best when it comes to gas mileage. That's $500 off Honda Civic Sedans and CVCC's. And $400 off Honda Civic Hatchbacks and Wagons. While supplies last. At participating Honda dealers NOW.
