Championship's success depends on fields

By ALEX TOUGH
 Success in 1979 is almost over - capital budget forecasts out. The Ontario, Peel Halton, Beatrice and Golden Horseshoe cup competitions are in full swing. Adidas and Coca Cola are promoting skills contests. These all lead up to the Provincial, Eastern and all-Canada championships in late August-early September.
 The capital forecast is something that the executive is very interested in, particularly as none of the soccer clubs have been consulted on soccer requirements since Karen King's period as recreation department co-ordinator way back in '76.

 The championships interest will depend round by round on our success on the field. At the time of writing junior, pee wee major atom and mosquitoes are out, leaving the minor atom and bantam girls still there.
 The Valentina girls are past the first round of Ontario on a bye and play July 28 against North York Cosmos at Cedarvale, 2 p.m.

Peel-Halton is hosting individual players skills contest on Aug. 14. Adidas and Coca Cola have been instrumental in sponsorship and many clubs participate. We do not seem to care in promoting the skills of the game. There was an attempt last year and the interest was poor, from players - we had more coaches than players out. However, this is an important part of the game and we should be doing something in this area.
 Sweden '79 is over? For all practical purposes, yes - there are several matters which require fairly immediate consideration. A meeting of the joint committee should be held to finalize the accounting, financial and otherwise.
 I believe the project was a success, particularly as this was the first soccer-hockey attempt at a joint venture. There are many lessons to be learned, improvements to be made, and a return journey to Hagfors in the near future to be planned.
 Once again a soccer personality entertained the vast audience with an engaging brand of humour and advice to young and old alike. I refer to former Scottish International forward Graham Leggat (of Toronto, Fucham and Aberdeen).

 Graham was a speedy striker with a flair for goal scoring and creating danger in the opposing ranks.
 Rob Ramage gave the young hockey players an insight into the build up and life of a pro hockey career. Mike Amodeo testified to both speakers and the message was clear. Amateur and pro sport is a good life, a rewarding life - and you get out of sport what you put in, which must be wholehearted and enjoyed.

 If your heart is not there, if you do not enjoy - get out!
 The youth soccer club and soccer organizers were rightly praised for the effectiveness of our operations, and the credit goes to all those who worked, fetched and carried, billeted, officiated and spectated. Hopefully, many of you will be able to go to Hagfors when the time comes. The Swedish boys earned their trip.
 They held functions - garage sales, pop sales, sold lottery-draw tickets, raised subscriptions and sponsorships all by themselves. In something like 6-8 months they raised the equivalent of $25,000 for their trip to Georgetown.
 In Sweden it is no easy task to raise that kind of money and the guys from Hagfors are commended heartily. We loved you and fervently hope to meet you again - soon. My one regret is, that living out of town I missed much of the social contact which is also due to the duties of being president of a flourishing organization.

Popiel joins Oilers

A second Georgetownner has joined the Edmonton Oilers who will play their first season in the National Hockey League this year.
 Paul Popiel, who played professional hockey in both the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association during his playing days, has been named one of the Oilers' assistant coaches.
 The Oilers last week named Al Rollins, a goaltender during his playing days, as the head coach. Popiel who last year coached in Austria and Glen Irwin were named as his assistants.
