

Cable to carry new station

From the Ottawa Bureau Of The Herald

Halton Cable Systems Ltd. of Georgetown has been ordered to carry multilingual programming from CFMT-TV, Toronto.

Halton Cable is one of 56 southern Ontario cable systems ordered last week to carry CFMT programs by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC).

CFMT received CRTC approval Thursday to broadcast from Toronto's CN Tower at 807,000 watts on Channel 47.

CFMT now broadcasts at 104,000 watts on Channel 45.

The CRTC says it expects CFMT to be broadcasting from the CN Tower by September.

Cable systems not wishing to carry CFMT can apply to the CRTC for exemption.

The decision to order the 56 cable systems to carry multilingual programming follows public hearings held in Toronto by the CRTC in 1977 and 1978.

At the hearings, says the CRTC, the public and broadcasters said there was a need for a multilingual television station to serve the Metropolitan Toronto region.

Prevent problems in advance

Feel free to ask your travel agent about local conditions, customs, weather and clothing needs.

Find out about local products and bargains, and comparison shop before leaving home.

The international traveler should find out about required documents, inoculations, and currency exchange.

Your agent will also explain the complexities of charter flights, and cancellation provisions if you—or the travel supplier—cancels.

Despite all planning, problems can still sometimes arise while traveling. Document any inconveniences and report them to your travel agent upon your return.

ASTA's Consumer Affairs Department, 711 Fifth Avenue, New York NY 10022, also investigates written complaints that are properly documented and have been submitted first to the travel supplier.

For further hints on hassle-free traveling, write to ASTA, Dept. M., 711 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10022.

Japan is world-famous for the many and varied arts practiced there... and rightly so!

Among the country's many cultural contributions are exquisite and symbolic theatre forms such as Noh and Kabuki; the energetic and stylized martial arts of judo, karate and sumo wrestling; ikebana, the art of flower arranging; the art of Japanese gardening, in which the aim is to create a composition that suggests, in miniature, the sweep of a vast landscape; the ritual of the tea ceremony, which imparts composure along with social grace; and the art of pottery-making, which is practiced at various centers throughout Japan.

Each center boasts its own special style of pottery, the roots of which go far back into the past and are deeply embedded in tradition.

Since the 16th century, the production of fine pottery has been linked particularly to the tea ceremony.

As the implements of the tea ceremony began to be manufactured domestically, rather than imported from China (where the ritual originated), the art of pottery-making, already long established in Japan, was refined even more. The great mas-
