

Vacation Guide Finnair: Fly to Europe in Luxury

Half of the fun of travelling is getting there. And, if you've tried the low budget special tours and found the going less than enjoyable, you might be ready for a refreshing change of pace in travel.

Imagine flying to Amsterdam, Copenhagen and Helsinki and on from there to London, Paris, Rome, even Bangkok in first-class luxury fit for a king or queen.

Finnair, the fifth oldest airline in the world, can take you to most of the world's favorite cities in opulent comfort.

Their hostesses will greet you as you embark on your flight-to-remember in English, German, Finnish or Swedish, and settle you comfortably into your seat.

The Finn Hostesses are poised young ladies particularly groomed to serve first class passengers. They are fluent in a minimum of four languages and have had the advantage of the finest flight training available today.

Your gracious greeting will only be the beginning of a wonderfully elegant time on board. Imagine travelling surrounded with fresh cut flowers artfully arranged in tittala vases from Finland's finest crystal-makers.

Begin your voyage with a toast. Finnair provides the Dom Perignon champagne!

For hors d'oeuvres, feast on such delicacies as Beluga caviar, smoked salmon and reindeer meat, accompanied by the finest of cheeses. Then select your main course from a menu of first class dinners.

You can enjoy a feature-length American film during your flight, or shop from Finnair's duty-free cart for luxurious scarves, liquors and perfumes.

When it's time to settle back for a rest, Finnair make sure that it's first class passengers have every possible little convenience to help fight off the ravages of jet lag.

You'll be provided with a Finnair totebag filled with the most thoughtful of surprises: a toothbrush, toothpaste, sleepmask, comfy slippers, a comb, mouthwash moist towelettes, and cologne. Finnair's first class service has been rated number one by several professional aviation journals. And their standards for air safety are equally high: Finnair meets and exceeds all FAA regulations.

To celebrate its tenth anniversary of transatlantic service this year, Finnair is adding a sixth flight to its regular weekly schedule. This will be a non-stop from New York to Helsinki.

making Finnair the only airline to offer non-stop as well as direct service to Finland from North America.

So, if you've been considering taking a trip to Europe, why not start off your grand tour with the grandest of flights.

For more information on Finnair's many first class services flights, write to: Mr. Ilkka Mitro, Finnair Marketing Dept., 10 East 40th St., New York, NY 10016
