INDIAN PARADE

Halton Hills Recreation Department staged a parade through Acton last Wednesday as a finale for all the various summer programs. One group of participants donned Indian costumes for their float. (Herald photo by Maggie Hannah)

The Y sponsors a new club for Georgetown's newcomers

Enlarging the membership will be the first priority for the Newcomers Club sponsored by the Georgetown YM-YWCA. The group drew 13 members to its first meeting in the Georgetown Y office last week, and the club's organizer Christina Grigg, said she hopes to see it expand so that interest groups can be set up within the club as has happened in similar clubs in Oakville and Burlington. The club is aimed mostly at women with young children at home whose opportunities to get acquainted in the community are limited, but anyone is welcome. Ms. Grigg, a social work graduate who has been hired for 10 weeks to get the new club organized, said that she hopes to bring speakers from various service clubs and community organizations to the club's monthly meetings as a means of acquainting club members with what their new community has to offer. Members were given copies of the town directory at last week's meeting and pamphlets describing the club and its aims have been distributed to the shopping centres in town and the library in hopes of attracting more of the town's new residents. People who have lived in the area less than a year are eligible to join the club and Ms. Grigg says she has been given names of potential members by Welcome Wagon and Hi Neighbour representatives so that she could send out brochures to them. Although it is aimed mostly at the women in the community the club members will be invited to bring their husbands every other month so that the men will also have the chance to meet other new men in town. The group's next meeting is tentatively set for Sept. 18 at 10 a.m. in the Georgetown Y office on Mountainview Road South.

POLICE AWARD TENDER

Finspan Construction Limited has been awarded the tender for the alterations of the Halton former County Health Unit building to turn it into a police station for the Milton detachment of Halton Regional Police. The Milton firm was the lowest bidder at $41,709, but was still well over the amount budgeted for the work by the Halton Regional Police Commission. The commission had budgeted $30,800 for the alterations.
