

Parents, sitters use new listings

Finding a babysitter is one of those problems that face newcomers in any area. The Babysitting Directory which is available in local stores this week could be the answer to anyone looking for such a person.

The directory contains names of people interested in doing day care, babysitting and even one person prepared to act as a companion to the elderly on an occasional basis. It lists people offering these services in Georgetown, Milton, Oakville and a few in Mississauga and Brampton.

Lori Chapman, a new Milton resident, saw the need for the directory and began collecting names in June. She set herself a cut off date in August so that it could be compiled and printed ready for distribution during the early fall. This is not the end of the service however.

People buying the directory will find a coupon inside which can be mailed back to Mrs. Chapman to ensure that new names submitted after the cutoff date can be forwarded to the buyer on a monthly basis.

Anyone interested in being listed in the directory can be added to the new listings which will be sent to people requesting them by sending their name, address, telephone number, age of children preferred, hours available, and references plus a dollar to Mrs. Chapman c/o the Halton-Peel Homemakers Association, 673 McColl Court, Milton.

Mrs. Chapman hopes to put out a revised edition next fall which will include other services available such as house keeping or odd jobs as well as babysitting and day care. She also hopes that Acton residents will come forward to be listed. She has contacted organizers of the Y babysitting courses in Georgetown and Oakville and invited their graduates to submit their names for the updated monthly listings after they complete their course.
