

Cutting for CCS

Anyone out there who has been putting off getting a haircut might want to consider putting it off for a little longer: to October 28, to be precise.

That is the day Christiane's Hair Salon will be holding a Cut-A-Thon, with the entire cost of each haircut going to the Canadian Cancer Society. The staff are donating their time from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on that Sunday.

There will be seven people cutting hair, and everybody is welcome to walk in any time of day. However, those who want to be sure of getting in can make an appointment ahead of time.

The prices for haircuts will stay the same, from $4.50 to $10.50, and Christiane says she hopes the salon will equal or better a normal business day's receipts. The cut-a-thon is open to men and children as well as women. All the salon's regular services are available to any customers who asks for them, such as perms, coloring, tinting, make-up, and facials, but primarily the idea to cut hair.

The cancer society volunteers will be serving coffee throughout the day and monitoring the fund-raising using a pair of scissors on a comb. They also hope to encourage people to become volunteer drivers, as the society is a little short on drivers at the moment.

"We want to encourage everyone to come out and have a haircut and a cup of coffee," Christiane said.

Obituary

Jessie Harris

Jessie Thikla Harris, a long time resident of Georgetown, passed away suddenly at Georgetown Memorial Hospital on September 21, 1979. She was born Thikla Alexandra Ann Yaworski, on March 17, 1917, in Toronto, the eldest of three children of Maxim Yaworski and his wife Ann Urbanski, who had immigrated to Canada from the Ukraine, then part of the Austro-Hungarian Empire.

In 1922 her parents purchased a farm near the village of Baltimore in the vicinity of Rice Lake. She was raised there with her brother Donald (Pat), and her sister, Ola. She attended school at Mill Valley where she completed her third form high school. Her parents are interred at nearby Centreton Cemetery.

In 1932 she left home and lived for a time in Toronto before coming to Georgetown. She found employment with Smith & Stone Ltd. and worked there for a number of years before leaving in 1947 to raise her growing children. For a brief period in 1968 she was again employed by Smith & Stone Ltd. when extra help was hired.

On November 18, 1939, in Brampton she married John Stanley Harris of Terra Cotta. The couple established their home in Georgetown. In 1941, their first child, Max was born and in 1948, their second child Joan, was born.

Since first coming to Georgetown she attended the First Baptist Church on Main Street. During the thirties she was a member of that church's young people's group and she also taught Sunday school.

Later when the congregation of the First Baptist Church merged with the congregation of Mountainview Baptist Church she became a member of that church. In recent years she taught handicrafts at that church's vacation bible school. She was an active member of the Mountainview Baptist Church Ladies Guild.

READ WIDELY

She read widely on various subjects and was a creative person. Throughout her life she attended night school and became proficient in oil painting and ceramics. Her home is decorated with the products of her talent. In later years she studied languages at night school. She was also known for her capability and originality in designing and tailoring. In less recent years she taught handicrafts for children at the YM-YWCA.

She is survived by her husband John Stanley Harris, of Georgetown, her son, Maxim Harris, of Brampton, her daughter Joan Harris of Prince George, British Columbia and her sister, Ola, Mrs. Arthur Bullivant, of Hamilton.

Funeral services were held by Rev. John Vincent at Mountainview Baptist Church followed by interment at Greenwood Cemetery, Georgetown, September 25, 1979. Pall bearers were Arthur Bullivant, of Hamilton, Harold Harris of Proton Station, Harvey Kirkwood of Acton, John McClure of Georgetown, Jeff Simpson of Terra Cotta and Lawrence Rayner of Georgetown.
