TOP OF THE HILLS

McNally Construction Ltd. and the new owners of Silver Creek Towers, the apartment complex under construction on Georgetown's Park Street, hosted several local dignitaries and the press for a special topping-off ceremony Thursday atop the building's eleventh and final storey. Builder William McNally (left) lavished one of his workers, Manuel Alvez, to join him and Mayor Pete Pomeroy for a rooftop photo, complete with Canadian flag. Mr. McNally expressed his pleasure at the progress workers have made on the 210-unit apartment complex since construction began 14 weeks ago. With apartment renting already underway, the complex' first tower is scheduled to open in the spring.

Thermometer keeps rising

Raising funds for community-oriented programmes that will involve residents of all ages, the Georgetown YM-YWCA has thus far collected $2,200 in its annual campaign to reach a goal of $5,000. Residential and industrial canvassing will be stepped up between now and the December 15 cut-off date, with the campaign's progress recorded on a giant thermometer erected at the Guelphview Square plaza. Y spokesman Sheila Finn told The Herald this week the group is pleased with public response thus far and is "very optimistic" its goal will be reached. Mrs. Finn stressed that the YM-YWCA relies wholly upon the community as a whole for its funds and support.
