Winterfest is on; sculpture is off

There will be no snow sculpture contest for this Saturday's first annual Halton Hills Winterfest

Tony Evers, publicity direcfor for the event, told The Herald Monday that the contiming shortage of snow is responsible for the cancellafirm.

"The trip to the Quebec City Winter Carnival, which was to have been first prize in the sculpture contest, will instead be raffled off Saturday afterncon," Mr Evers said.

Tickets for the draw will cost one dollar and can be obtained at the fair grounds, from Roos travel, at the Akers-Clark real e tate company or from any Jaycee member.

The lack of snow will not, however, affect any of the other scheduled events, Mr. Evers said, noting that enthusiasm for the team events is very high.

"We're almost all booked up for the broomball fournament. but there are still some openings for the Crazy Curling Bonspiel," he explained.

A limited number of tickets to the Winterfest Dance, which begins in the Armoury at 8 p.m., can still be obtained by calling Cathy Dudley at 877-7767. Tickets are $5 per couple.

Following is the Winterfest schedule:

9:00 a.m. - Opening Ceremony, Family Skating, Broomball Tournament (continues all day), Cross Country Ski Trails (all day).

to a.m. - Men's Log Sawing Contest, Bus Shuttle Service (all day till 5), Food and Refreshment Booths open (all

ABBEY PLAYERS LIMITED

This Brampton musical company boasts of having Georgetown residents in the production. Blake Stansfield, teacher, along with Neil Williams, are stalwart chorus supporters. Beth Stansfield is turning her hand to Front of House duties and Enid Williams has negotiated costume rental and compiled measurements for Abbey's wardrobe records. One of Gilbert and Sullivan's finest scores, Yeomen of the Guard, will be presented February 28, 29, March 1, 6, 7 and 8, at Lester B. Pearson Theatre, Bramalea, Tickets, 877 0702 or 457-308.1

HALTON HILLS ARTS COUNCIL PRESENTS CAMERATA, is an ensemble of professional instrumentalists who will bring their informal, joyous approach to music to Georgetown, February 27, at Holy Cross Church, Maple Avenue. Their music will entertain and delight you while introducing you to a great new musical experience. We are proud to sponsor this forward thinking group of musicians Help the Arts Happen in Halton! Through your support of this concert, we shall endeavor to offer more cultural events in the future. Tickets, 877-8680.

CANTANTE SINGERS Another aspect of cultural growth is putting down roots in our town of Georgetown. A group of teens has formed a jurls' choir under the baton of Dale Wood. They are proud to announce their name, Cantante Singers. Membership in the choir has reached 24 and they meet each Sunday at 1 p.m. in St. John's United Church, Georgetown. Pop music is the idiom used to draw the choir together and Mr. Wood expects to expand the repertoire as the young people reach out with curiosity to try other types of music. Membership is open to any one from 13 years and older and Mr. Wood hopes some of these young singers will aspire to Georgetown Choral Society's ranks someday. Information Dale Wood, 877-1638.

Rehearsals have begun for the Georgetown Little Theatre (GLT) production of Separate Tables, its third play of the season, according to Mary Rae Main. The cast will be composed of Val Stoddart as Miss Cooper, Vera Macdonald as Mrs. Railton Bell, Marie Cleaton as Miss Meacham, Pat Joynes as Lady Matheson, Ashley Windsor as John Malcolm, Shetla Hughes as Anne Shankland, Edna Ferguson as Mable, Derek Joynes as Mr. Fowler, Nicola Joynes as Doreen, Ron Hill as Major Pollock, Joyce Holland as Sybil Radion-Bell, John Roe as Charles Stratton and Jenny Jackson as Jean Tanner-Stratton.

Production help in the areas of lighting, make-up, sewing and set-furnishings is needed. Anyone interested in helping should call Enid Williams at 877-0702. Separate Tables will be presented Feb. 23, 24, 29 and March 1.

Summer theatre?

The Georgetown Little Theatre (GLT) is investigating the possibility of becoming involved in a summer dinner-theatre at the Terra Cotta Inn. Mary Rae Main, GLT publicist, says the Inn approached GLT and two other theatre groups to do productions in the months of June, July and August. Performances would take place on Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays for either July or August, Because of its summer scheduling, the GLT is asking for a brin commitment from the membership in order to make final decisions.

Not so hot

The weather may have been much milder recently than Halton Hills residents were used to for January, but 30 years ago, it was warmer still.

According to Herald files from 30 years ago, the temperature reached a high of 62 degrees Fahrenheit, but ten years ago, it was a different story. The month of January was the coldest since 1920, with the average temperature for the month being nine degrees

January 24, 1970 saw the temperature drop to minus 22 degrees, the coldest it had been since March 5, 1948. Between then and 1970, the temperature dropped to minus 22 degrees one other time, but never below. Georgetown's weather records, which go back to 1914, show-the lowest reading ever as 29 degrees below zero in 1925.

Waste report due

The Solid Waste Management Systems Study report will be presented in its final form at Halton region February 6. The study will present a number of options the region might take in dealing with solid waste.

NEC workshops

Public information workshops on the proposed plan for the Niagara Escarpment continue to be held throughout the escaroment area, while three officers have been appointed by the Niagara Escarpment Commission to conduct public hearings on the recently-released document. With the hearings set to begin in early April at at least eight locations yet to be chosen, the officers in charge have been identified as Armour McCrae, former Welland mayor, Walter Shrives and M. Dean Henderson. All three men are representatives of the Ontario Municipal Board.

Sherwood Forest exports?

A petition signed by 31 area residents seeking the removal of flower beds at the Delrex Boulevard entrance to Joseph Gibbons Park in Georgetown, and their replacement with several trees is being partially satisfied by the town's general committee. Committee is recommending to council that the flower beds be removed and sodded over, at an estimated cost of $300. Any future tree planting, however, will depend on the recommendations that come out of the soon to be completed master parks plan. Coun. Walter Biehn noted that, "if we hadn't spent $65,000 on a master parks plan, we could have shipped over Sherwood Forest from England to replace the flower bed".
