

Vacation Guide

Holly Jasinski, age nine, from Indian Road Crescent Junior Public School, holds newborn spring lamb at Black Creek Pioneer Village. Holly, in a pioneer costume designed by her mother, was spending the week at Dixon Hill School at the Village, taking her classes in an authentic pre-Confederation environment. Visitors to the Village can see the ten newborn animals, with another ten births expected over the next two weeks. Black Creek Pioneer Village is open seven days a week and during April, May and June, the hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on weekdays and 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. on weekends and holidays.

Discover your vacation personality

Vacations are an important psychological investment. Yet, nearly everyone has at some time been to the wrong place at the wrong time, or with the wrong person, or in the wrong frame of mind.

- If you want to double your next vacation pleasure, you might heed the advice of psychologist Stephen Shapiro.
- He's the co-author of Time Off, a psychological guide to vacation planning, published by Doubleday-Anchor.
- To prevent vacation spoilage, Dr. Shapiro suggests that you ask yourself "What do I want to do for myself?" before embarking on your trip.
- Your answer may then set you packing for a popular vacation that will satisfy your urge for either a Culture, Self-Improvement, Roughing It, Rest and Relaxation, or Status Quest trip away from home.
- Dr. Shapiro emphasizes that you can get in touch with your vacation personality by reflecting on your previous vacations, learning from problems and projecting future pleasures.

- "The main vacation spoiler is the wish to be someone else, somewhere else, with someone else," he says.
- A mini-study by the psychologist defines three important vacation characteristics preferred by people in various stages of life:
 - In the 18-22 year old group, the companion is more important than the activity.
 - In the 23-35 year old group, people question the relevance of their lives and more "try on" new lifestyles through their selection of leisure activities.
 - In the 36 and older group, people tend to mellow and their vacation preferences show a greater need for relationships with others.

P.E.I.'s great for sailing!

Prince Edward Island, nestled in the southern Gulf of St. Lawrence on Canada's east coast, provides an excellent atmosphere for super sailing. 'The Island,' Canada's smallest province, is only 224 km (140 miles) long and from 6 km to 84 km (4 to 40 miles) wide. Visitors enjoy 1100 miles of sandy coastline, the warmest salt water north of Florida and a gentle breeze (10 knot average) plus average summer temperatures of 24 degrees C (75 degrees F). All of these conditions make coastal Prince Edward Island perfectly suited to many summer activities like swimming, sunbathing, beachcombing, clamdigging, deep sea and tuna fishing, canoeing and sailing. Prince Edward Island has two yacht clubs; one in Charlottetown in central Queens County, the province's capital and only city, and Summerside, in Prince County. Both yacht clubs are well represented, and sailing craft of many designs and colours add beauty and grace to the clear, clean waters of Prince Edward Island.

A Sailor's Welcome: Islanders are warm and friendly folks. The local sailors you'll meet will typify this long tradition of neighborliness. New and lasting friendships are made at the yacht clubs or the many small ports like Souris, Georgetown and North Rustico - whatever the port, the reception will be unmistakable.

The entire family will enjoy the best that sailing has to offer on the south shore facing the sheltered Northumberland Strait only 14 km (9 miles) from New Brunswick and 22 km (14 miles) from Nova Scotia. The north shore overlooking the Gulf of St. Lawrence

A sheltered location in the southern Gulf of St. Lawrence and 1,100 miles of sandy shores guarantee first-class sailing opportunities on Prince Edward Island! Graceful sailing craft accent the natural coastal beauty of 'the Island.' Also, in the summer, numerous yacht races test the skill and valor of the sailing buffs from the east coasts of Canada and United States. (P.E.I. Tourism Photo) promises a challenge (if not real adventure!) for experienced sailors. Whatever your level of sailing skill, Prince Edward Island is the ideal location.

Whether you compete or simply enjoy watching yacht races, you won't be disappointed here. There are about 8 yacht races to and, indeed, around the Island scheduled for 1989. The second annual 'Round-the-Island' yacht race promises to be one of the most thrilling sailing events of the season if the results of the 1979 race are an indication - 8 entries with only one boat completing the race! It's unlikely that local skeptics will again openly question the true test of marine skill this race involves.

Also growing interest is evident in sailing cruises like those offered by Larry Peck at the beautiful port of Victoria on the south shore. Two graceful sailing craft take sailing buffs on 3-hour sailing cruises of the harbour (adults $12, child $6) and one-week sailing cruises (total $965 for 4 persons) along the flawless coast of Prince Edward Island and a friendly visit to the Magdalen Islands.

lobster is featured along with homemade bread, rolls, salads and tempting treats like fresh strawberry shortcake. Whether you experience a sailing vacation on 'the Island,' or one with your feet planted firmly on our famous red soil, memories of a perfect vacation will lure you back...and again.
