

Moore Instrument Co., 1950-1980

Work inside, play out

At the Moore Instrument Company in Norval, it's just a short step away from the machines and desks to the baseball diamond and the gardens outside.

The company is celebrating 30 years in Canada this year, and held an open house for employees' families and friends Thursday evening.

Moore Instrument designs, manufactures and assembles control panels for industrial processes. The panels monitor various conditions during these processes, such as temperature, pressure and flow.

The Canadian company is associated with Moore Products Company of Pennsylvania. It was with this company that the idea of a plant in a rural setting originated.

F. Lawton Hindle, president and general manager of the Canadian company, said the American plant is located in a rural setting similar to the one in Norval. In Norval, the plant is located on a 90-acre site which runs west from the 5th Line of Peel.

BIG PERSONS
"Our big problem was in getting the property zoned," Mr. Hindle said. "We got it zoned special industrial, low density, a new designation, but we had to make a number of commitments to the Brampton planning department."

"We had to have it set back from the road a certain distance, and landscaping had to be appropriate to the location. Because of the new zoning designation they created for us, we had to commit ourselves to not turning this into an industrial subdivision."

The 90-acre site includes eight acres of hardwood bush, 20 acres of apple orchard and 20 acres of cultivated fields and pasture. One of the commitments the company had to make was to leave the bush standing.

The site also has a baseball diamond, a small lake and garden plots planted and maintained by the employees.

The zoning regulations have also set a limit on expansion of the plant, but there is still lots of room for growth. The plant is currently 27,000 square feet and planning regulations will permit expansion to 120,000 square feet.

Mr. Hindle said the plant has grown even since the company relocated in Norval from Rexdale in December of 1978. When the company moved here, it employed about 50 people, and this has now increased to 75.

WIDE RANGE
Moore Instrument's control systems are used in a wide range of industries, including petrochemical, petroleum and chemical industries, pulp and paper, metals, food and textiles.

The Norval plant is the head office in Canada. There is a branch office in Montreal, and representatives in Halifax, Fredericton, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver.

New pool fence law

The town's general committee passed a recommendation Monday to consolidate all bylaws regulating the fencing of swimming pools in the town.

Town deputy clerk Delmar French pointed out that the new bylaw has few changes from those existing in Acton, Esquesing and Georgetown, but merely ties them all together uniformly.

Above-ground pools which may not have been fenced under the Esquesing bylaw will not have to be fenced in their entirety now as long as the entry is fenced or they are equipped with retractable ladders which can be locked in an elevated position to prevent accidents to small children, he said.

He also pointed out that the Acton bylaw permitted only one gate into a pool and required no side yard specifications, and the new bylaw will require no changes for existing pools.
