

HALTON HILLS ARTS COUNCIL Big weekend

By ENID WILLIAMS
The FORGE STUDIO GALLERY in beautiful Terra Cotta, down the road from Terra Cotta Inn, is a lovely setting to roam with the artists and nature.
The Forge has its credit property of free dimension, shaded with trees, and a play area for children. Families are encouraged to bring their children as they can play outdoors while parents enjoy the art collection.
Once inside, the artists come alive! Resident artist AGNES OLIVE, shows raku and child-like drawings, which not only interest the viewer, but also stimulate curiosity. This artist is enjoying success showing her work in Toronto galleries.

Glassblown works by PETER ZIPPS and silk scarves by CATHY REID add greatly to the collection.
Storage pots in a beautiful blue draw attention, created by potter CLAUDIA BETAK. A touch of whimsy in pottery by MARIANNA GILBERT was an inspirational contrast.
A woven kamsack by JOAN WEIR certainly would intrigue the casual set and would be a treasured item in any wardrobe.
In a different vein, we viewed silk screen in bright yellow by LUCIE HANNAH.
The art of enhancing antique pieces, stencilled and painted by hand by Georgetown artist JEAN RUGG, was most interesting. The technique of monoprints intrigued this writer and was discussed by JO WALTERSON, another artist in residence at THE FORGE.
Some other art pieces in watercolor and collagraph by Mrs. WALTERSON are a treat to see. BEV de JONG is now showing her art work at THE FORGE GALLERY. Information 877-1312 or 9269.
Should you stroll to Terra Cotta Inn for a refreshing drink on the terrace, once again you will be embraced by the natural beauty of the countryside.
Items to follow in this column during the next month will include: Georgetown Little Theatre's new storage home. Brampton's concept of working together with performing arts groups. News of Glen Williams' arts community. A review of one of the Shaw Festival plays at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

MINIATURE MARVELS

Tracy Buchanan seems entranced by these dolls, which were on display outside the Country Gallery Saturday and Sunday in Terra Cotta. The dolls were just one of many exhibits of arts and crafts on display at the arts festival in Terra Cotta. The Country Gallery, The Forge Gallery, The Gallery of Tibetan Arts and Crafts and the Craft Barn all had their finest crafts and art works on display.
