

POP!
GO THE BUBBLE-GUMMERS

Snap, crackle and pop, but try as they might to blow the perfect bubble, Acton Library's bubblegum chewing contest Saturday proved to be quite a mouthful for these youngsters. The bubblegum blowing contest is one of a number of events sponsored by the South Central Library System and the Halton Hills Public Library Board. Recently the board was given permission to use pupper characters from "Where the Wild Ones Are" in its Wild Reading Club. (Herald photo)

Twenty-one youngsters received proficiency certificates for their bubblegum blowing skills at the Acton library Saturday. Both libraries in Acton and Georgetown will be sponsoring a number of events during the summer. Sign language stories are planned for Georgetown this week and indoor gardening for eight year olds is upcoming. (Herald photo)

deal for Disston

Herald Special
Frank Heller and Co. Ltd., has finally negotiated a deal with Sandvik Canada Incorporated for the vacant Disston plant on McDonald Street.

The deal won't close until September, Heller's general manager Fred Dawkins said last week.

Ron Heller said it will be the end of July before a decision is known on Heller's application for government aid.

It was lack of this aid which caused a breakdown in negotiations earlier this year. Poor economy and high interest rates also played a part in dampening Heller's attempts to buy the plant which would give them room to consolidate work presently going on in two Acton factories and a Georgetown plant.

Mr. Dawkins said the moving period will cover September, October, and November in order to allow productions to be carried on during the move. As well as moving existing equipment to the Disston plant some new equipment will be installed which will improve rather than expand present operations.

Heller's plans to diversify its product to include some specialty leathers are being imported now.

Georgetown fair board wants your ideas, help

By DENNY CHARLES and BETTY WELLS-STEAD
Georgetown Agricultural Society

Got a great idea for the Georgetown Fair? Then the Georgetown Fair Board would like to hear from you. A motion was passed last week asking any individual or organization interested in adding a new feature to the fair to come forward.

At a meeting of the Georgetown Agricultural Society Thursday in the fairgrounds, members heard a number of new ideas put forward for the annual fair. These included the introduction of a photography and art show, an old-time fiddler's contest, a Miss Fall Fair contest, pet show, baby contest, beer garden and evening dancing.

While the new ideas and events had merit, however, it was decided there is not enough manpower to handle new features. Member Charlie Fogal commented that in the years he has been active with the board, he has "never seen enough help" at the fairgrounds on the morning of the fair.

Hope was expressed that anyone with a new idea or feature for the fair will come forward, but they must be prepared to direct and help stage the event, as a shortage of help can be predicted. This year, the 134th annual fair show will be held October 3 and 4.

Herb Dolson, Society president, expressed the hope that new ideas and help would be forthcoming for the fair, as the fair board was comparatively small for the size of the annual workload, and many members are getting older. "We need new faces," he said, "and some younger members as well."

The problem of poor fencing at the fairgrounds, which had been worrying members for some time, was discussed. Secretary Denny Charles reported that he was sending a letter to the municipality committing the Society to the sum of $2,500 towards the cost of erecting a new chain-link fence on two sides of the fairgrounds park. He was hopeful that town officials would proceed with the fence and that it would be completed in time for this year's fair.

While attendance appeared good at the 1979 Fair, gate receipts were not comparable. It was felt that a new fence might remedy what appeared to be a costly situation.

The prize list for 1980 was finalized at the meeting with plans made for the various competitions, including the domestic and agricultural events.

Jewelry stolen
