Fashion and tradition in new clothing store

Herald Special
A Guelph couple setting up their first business opened a new clothing store on Acton's main street last week.
Rose and Peter Yeo, owners of Market Jeany, have both worked in the clothing business before and tested their merchandise and selling techniques in the Fergus Market for a few months prior to moving to Acton.
They will carry both men's and ladies' jeans, shirts, T-shirts and some leather goods.

Let's run around together.

They will aim to follow the trends as much as possible and carry designer jeans of Canadian and Oriental brands.
There won't be any children's fashions because the Yeo's feel the prices on these items make them a "rip off".
The couple love antiques and have a few pieces in their store to add atmosphere. They consider their selling technique is also rather old-fashioned since they don't believe in high pressure sales pitches.

Mrs. Yeo has been teaching handicapped children at the Rotary Children's Centre in Guelph for the past two years and will return to the classroom in September.
Mr. Yeo built the shelving and fitting rooms for the store and lists collecting and restoring antiques as his hobby. Their sign has been painted for them by a Guelph artist.

New business reflects home decorating trend

By CHRIS AAGAARD
Herald Staff Writer
A new business has opened in Georgetown, "reflecting" an increased popularity in using mirrors for effective home decorating.
The Mirroline Designs Ltd. shop located in Main Street's Old Bank building, marks a successful milestone for owners Koos Kujler and his wife, Angela, who put their creative talents to mirror design a scant three years ago.
"I used to work for the House of Viking in Toronto," Koos (pronounced Koss) told the Herald Monday, "and I could see the furniture business slowly going down, so I decided to get into mirrors."
Within a month, Koos, who admitted he didn't know how to cut glass before he started, created his first mirror design. Working out of their Huttonville home, Koos and Angela created more designs while Koos then tried to sell to interior designers.

Although Koos managed to sell a few items to designers, he received his first break in Brampton after one store ordered six of his creations, all distinctively marked with his initials, JK (for Jakobus, his Christian name).
Since then, Mirroline Designs has grown, arousing enough interest among home designers that the company now employs salesmen in Montreal and Toronto. Koos displayed his work at the Ontario Design show in Toronto last fall and another display is scheduled for the spring.
"It's what you might call 'high class' furniture," Koos says of the creations he and his wife have made. Mirroline designs come in numerous sizes and shapes, including mirrored room dividers, planters, coffee and end tables, decorative pyramids and a line of simple, but novel mirror coasters.
The designs often juxtapose mirrors against each other, or at angles for a variety of refracting effects and some of the designs are inlaid with broad bands of bronze or patterns of stained glass. Koos also makes simple and practical mirrors bordered with frames for bathrooms and bedrooms.
"There's an unlimited amount you can do with mirrors," Koos said. Mirrors can brighten a dark room, make it seem larger and even cooler.
White Koos admits that business is growing pretty fast, he maintains that "good service is the most important thing". Mirroline Designs will ship any of their pieces across the country, and in fact, are doing brisk business in Halifax.
If you're redesigning a room in your house and would like to do something a little out-of-the-ordinary, be sure to check out the possibilities at Georgetown's new Mirroline shop.

Ballinafad Visit to the mountains highlights vacation

By WINIFRED SMITH
Herald Correspondent
Mr. and Mrs. Reg French arrived back from holidays over the weekend. They toured through several American states, stopping in New Hampshire when they toured the region of the White Mountains, and experienced one of the biggest thrills of their lives when they went to the top of Mount Washington which is 18,900 feet above sea level.
Mrs. French said "It was a bit scary" as they took the eight-mile trip but something they would never forget.
GET TOGETHER
On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. French and their family, with members of the Campbell family, had a get-together at the home of Mrs. George Howatt at Fergus.
EMILY PLOUFFE DIES
The sad news was reported here Monday that Emily Plouffe passed away. Mrs. Plouffe was a member of the Ballinafad W.I. One year ago she suffered a stroke and for the past few months has resided in the manor, where she was slowly recovering until the fatal illness suffered last week. Sincere sympathy is extended to the Plouffe family.
GRANDPARENTS
Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Leo Jamieson, who became grandparents again last week. Daughter Susan and her husband Earl Butler are the proud parents of a little daughter.
SNOWS HOST
Friends of the Ballinafad community were invited to spend the weekend with Bud and Eveline Snow at their summer home in the Harriston area recently.

FARM HOLIDAY
Mr. and Mrs. Griffen Jones are returning home Wednesday after a holiday at the Smith farm.
GUEST MINISTERS
There were not too many out to greet the two guest ministers at church Sunday. Rev. John Vincent, who is pastor of Mountainview Baptist in Georgetown, delivered the sermon and a minister from Guelph spoke on behalf of the Guelphs.
SQUIRT SOCCER
The Blazers continued their winning ways this past week with a 2-1 win over Blizzards.
AUGUST DANCE
Tickets for the August dance will be available shortly from team coaches.
