

Herald staffers Shirley Jessop (left) and Marie Shadbolt share a joke in the new Herald building's main office, on view during tomorrow's Open House.

Old clutter to new order

INSIDE
THE HERALD

The clutter and the creaking floors characterized The Herald's old headquarters on Main Street. Seen here typesetters proofread copy in the back shop.

First to greet Herald customers at the new headquarters are business office staffers (left to right) Jenny Hapichuk (in charge of accounting), Marie Shadbolt (circulation) and Shirley Jessop (classified ads). The spacious central office upstairs in the new building is a far cry from the cramped front office at 103 Main Street, which originally served as editorial and advertising departments as well before the newspaper expanded upstairs at the old building.

A look at The Herald's new Goss Community press, housed in the new building's lower level. Here, pressman Maurice Aube checks a copy of the paper during a Tuesday press run. The huge, four unit machine will be on display throughout tomorrow's open house, 2 to 6 p.m. at 45 Guelph St., Georgetown.

ALWAYS GLAD TO HELP

ARMSTRONG AVE, GEORGETOWN 877-6931

Herald carrier Billy Gordon is one of the dedicated boys and girls who brave the elements to deliver The Herald to subscribers in Halton Hills each Wednesday. Billy is one of those carriers whose efforts on behalf of his customers have been recognised with his having been named a "Carrier of the Month" for his hard work. It helps to make up for those long walks with a heavy bag of newspapers in that rotten weather.
