

Local council threatens legal action

Equalized sewer rates stay

 they had asked for it in the first place.
 Referring to a remark apparently made by one councillor that he had "put his neck on the line" over the sewer issue, Coun. Gooding said: "There are some chickens up north and some chickens down south; some necks."
 Coun. Mannell blamed "cosmic influences" for reactions to the Price-Waterhouse study "which defy logic". He said that deferring the decision on the sewer surcharge system "makes sense" and that scuttling the system at this point would be "the wrong thing to do".
 Halton Hills Coun. Ed Wood said that the "credibility of the region is at stake", adding that the sewer surcharge system is the "proper surcharge in the long haul".

opinion" and said that discussing it behind closed doors was "not an unfair request."
 The legal coup failed to sway the Burlington bloc of votes. Burlington Mayor Roly Bird said he hoped councillors were not "intimidated" by the in-camera session and suggested that the region should go to the province to have the charge-back system approved.
 "I'm prepared to face the legal action contemplated by Halton Hills," he said.
 In approving the Halton Hills resolution to defer a decision, Mayors Pomeroy, Barrett and Don Gordon of Milton were joined by Halton Hills councillors Wood, Mike Armstrong, Roy Booth, Russ Miller, Oakville councillors, Carol Gooding, Terry Mannell, Bonnie Brown, and Milton councillors Gus Goutouski and Bill Johnson, Burlington councillors Allingham, Lacombe, Jim Grieve, Vern Connell, Ted MacDonald, Pat McLaughlin, Walter Mulkewich and Oakville councillors Laurie Mannell and Ron Planché joined Mayor Bird in an attempt to defeat the resolution and pass the Allingham motion to revert to the sewer chargeback system. Oakville Coun. Mac Anderson was absent.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY SEEKS VOLUNTEERS

The Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital Auxiliary is seeking more volunteers in all areas, but particularly men to visit male patients in the hospital, to talk, or play a game of checkers or cards. The auxiliary is also looking for reliable people to act as ward workers, performing housekeeping duties and assisting nurses in various fashions. Anyone interested in volunteering can contact Dorothy Long at 877-8872 or VI Haines at 877-1593.
