

Hospital staffers at OHA meet

Senior administrative staff, board members, medical and nursing staff and department heads will be delegates from the Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital at the 55th annual OHA convention being held next week at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto.

Between 4,000 and 5,000 delegates — trustees, staff and physicians from public hospitals, psychiatric hospitals and other health-care facilities and organizations — are expected to attend. "More older people — more older patients" is this year's convention theme and will be highlighted among various topics of discussion. The official opening and luncheon Monday will feature 83-year-old Therese Casgrain, former senator from Quebec, as guest speaker.

Professor J.C. Brocklehurst of the department of geriatric medicine at the University of Manchester will deliver the keynote address at the first afternoon's general session. He will deal with the impact of a growing elderly population on Ontario's health-care system from the perspective of what is being done in England — a world leader in programs designed to care for elderly patients without keeping them in hospital beds.

Dennis Timbrell, Ontario's health minister, will then outline his government's plans to organize provincial resources to meet the needs of a growing population of older people.

Two of this province's own authorities on geriatrics care, Dr. Gilbert Rosenberg and Stephen Hudin, will review what is already being done in Ontario to help the elderly. Dr. Rosenberg is physician-in-chief of geriatrics and continuing care medicine at St. Mary's of the Lake Hospital in Kingston. Mr. Hudin is executive director of the Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care in Toronto.

On Tuesday, hospital trustees, chief executive officers, chiefs of medical staff and nursing administrators will meet to discuss both current and projected programs for the elderly. Leading off the discussion will be representatives from these four groups, presenting their own particular experience in caring for the elderly. On the last day of the convention, there will be tours to the new building at Toronto General Hospital, the Baycrest Centre and the newly expanded West Park long-term care hospital. Sessions for the various professional groups in the health-care field, from dietitians to chaplains, will be concurrent with the general sessions. Some sessions will touch on the convention theme and others will cover topics of particular interest to these specialized groups.

Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital is a member of the Ontario Hospital Association, the independent, non-governmental, representative association of hospitals in Ontario. The convention is one of the many education programs organized by OHA for hospital staff and trustees.

Make-up - not masks

Poor fitting Halloween masks or ones with small eye slits can become a potential hazard when they block a child's view of dangers that might appear in a young ghost or goblin's path.

The Ontario Association of Optometrists urges parents to create safer costumes this year by using disguises made from make-up instead of masks.
