No way out for strikers-union

By MAGGIE HANNAH Herald Special

Striking employees at Rockwell International in Milton accepted a contract proposal put before them last week because they had no alternative, according to the local union president.

Bob Farrell, head of United Auto Workers Local 1967, said workers "were voting with a gun at their head" on a contract package unchanged from one presented at the start of a strike in March.

He said that in nearly 20 years as a labor negotiator he has often heard the company threats to close a plant during contract talks, but it was only last week that the Rockwell threat could be taken

When the offer accepted this week was first placed before negotiators in March, hints were made that the company could not afford to give emplayees what they were seeking.

But no statements were actually made about closing the plant. That didn't happen until Oct. 30, Mr. Farrell said. It wasn't until company negotiators said employees must either accept the latest company offer or the plant would be shut down by the end of the year, that the union took the threats seriously.

The new contract gives employees a 31.6 per cent pay increase over the next three years. Only about 80 of the 470 employees working when the plant strike began in March will return next week. About 30 employees had aiready been laid off when the strike began and another 195 were scheduled to be laid off in a permanent lay-off announced in June.

A further 150 employees were laid off permanently in July. The layoffs resulted from a company decision to replace the manufacture of leaf springs with coil springs for motor vehicles.

The union will work to find jobs for the laid-off men, some with as much as 20 years on the

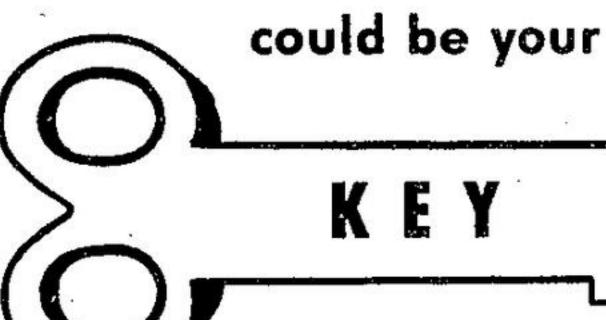

Mr. Farrell said most skilled tradesmen have not been laid off but while they have senority, they can't switch to jobs classified as production work.

The auto workers union will attempt to find jobs for the Rockwell employees within the auto industry. Ford, General Molors and Chrysler are rehiring, Mr. Farrell said.

Employees hope to qualify for unemployment insurance benefits denied them earlier this year lecause they were classed as striking workers. The union is seeking retroactive benefits for workers laid off in June and July.

Mr. Farrell said workers would not have accepted the settlement approved this week if union representatives had proposed acceptance in March.

Tough new laws will deter trespassing.

How we're helping to protect vou and your property.

or nearly 150 years Ontario has had a law making it an offence to enter property where entry is prohibited. But now new legislation-The Trespass to Property Act - has toughened up the law to protect your rights.

Trespassers can now be fined up to $1,000. In addition, they can be ordered to pay for damages they have caused.

An important part of the legislation designates premises where entry is prohibited without notice. These include your gardens, orchards, vineyards, land under cultivation, woodlots and fenced land.

Where notice must be given to prohibit entry, you may use red markings on gates, trees or fences. Yellow markings may be used to caution that only certain activities may be permissible. It is the responsibility of the visitor to find out what you permit. LAND USED FOR RECREATION In the past, there was a great deal of confusion regarding your responsibility to people you allow on your land. Consequently many farmers and rural landholders would not allow recreational activities on their properties.

Now another new act - The Occupiers' Liability Act-reduces your responsi-bility. In a nutshell, the law assumes that those who take their recreation on most rural land without paying a fee will take care for their own safety. A special system has been devised to allow you to easily indicate which activities you will allow on your property. A sign naming or graphically representing an activity (for example, hiking) indicates that the activity is permitted. The same kind of sign with an oblique stroke through it means that you prohibit the activity. / These new laws are part of a continuing program to streamline our legislation. By clarifying your rights, they afford you greater protection from trespass and also reduce your liability when you make land available for recreational purposes.
