By JULIAN REED M.P.P.

Itacon-Burlington INDUSTRIAL WASTE
Provincial legislation has been prepared which would override bylaws passed by some municipalities to ban dumping of industrial wastes within their boundaries, or so it appears. The Deputy Minister of the Environment has confirmed that such legislation has been drafted but is viewed as a contingency for an emergency situation, which would only be considered if, for example, the Canadian-U.S. border was closed to the export of wastes, all landfill sites and treatment plants were closed by municipal bylaws and the province faced massive illegal dumping of wastes.

DEVELOPMENT CONTROVERSY

You will probably recall the Contrakon controversy of two years ago. A similar dispute has now erupted over a development proposal in the Beaver Valley area of the Niagara Escarpment. In question is a proposal for a 300 acre resort and residential development consisting of 46 single-family detached houses and a hotel of 40 to 50 rooms in Euphrasia Township of Grey County. This project, called the Epping Commons Development, is being proposed by Cambray Investments and Maxtone Holdings Ltd. The Niagara Escarpment Commission refused to issue a development permit for the proposal and, in an appeal, the hearing officer upheld the commission's recommendation and refused the permit. According to the Minister of Housing the township asked for an amendment to the official plan which would, in effect, allow the development.

X-RAYS
New legislation has been introduced covering X-Ray safety, registration of equipment and standards for X-Ray operators. The Healing Arts Radiation Protection Act, introduced for first reading by the Minister of Health, establishes a five member radiation-protection commission whose responsibility will be to develop an X-Ray safety code, approve safety courses for X-Ray operators and act as an adviser to the Minister. This proposed legislation, which follows recommendations made earlier this year by an advisory committee on radiology, will replace existing legislation covering X-Ray safety, which is designed primarily to protect X-Ray workers.
