Kin entertain 123 seniors

The second seniors' tour of the Christmas lights conducted by the Georgetown Kinmen Club Wednesday was a success, with 123 seniors enjoying the tour and the caroling which followed.

The tour of four buses, provided by Travelways School Transit, was led off by a Halton Regional Police cruiser with rooflights flashing. The tour stuck to the Deltex subdivision, circling the streets around Deltex Boulevard before returning to St. Andrew's Church for carol singing and coffee.

St. Andrew's Choir, directed by Terry Champ, led the carol singing, and the choir of Kinmen children gave the guests a chance to listen to some carols as well.

Santa Claus and two of his elves greeted guests at the door and distributed carol sheets, as well as handing out the door prizes. Kinmen, Kinettes and Kin wives served the refreshments. Food and refreshments were provided by IGA, A and P, Miracle Mart, Mr. Donut and Dairy Queen. Door prizes were provided by A and P, IGA, Mac's Milk, Deltex Smoke Shop, Cinemas 3, Young's Pharmacy, Pine Valley Farms and Kentner's Catering.

Halton Hills celebrates Christmas, New Year's

Church services across town

Whether for potluck suppers, a night of carolling or candlelight services, people throughout Halton Hills will be taking some time off from wrapping and unwrapping presents during the holidays to spiritually celebrate the birth of Christ almost 2,000 years ago.

And whether you decide to attend services at your regular church or try something different for a change, there's no shortage of seasonal events going on at local churches.

Unfortunately, not all churches could be contacted in time for this article. No schedules are available for the St. Paul's Anglican Church in Norval is holding a family service with carols at 7:30 p.m. Christmas Eve, followed by a midnight service beginning at 11:15 p.m. There will be no service Christmas Day.

St. John's United Church, Georgetown will also hold a family service at 7:30 p.m., then a midnight communion at 11:30 p.m. Christmas Eve. Rev. or an OMB hearing. Meanwhile, Coun. Booth said that he is quite pleased with the outcome of a second suit, filed shortly before the Halton Aggregate Producers challenge in September. The tribunal ruled that plaintiff Standard Aggregates could not object to almost the entire plan which, had the suit been successful, would have tied up the plan for lengthy hearings before the OMB.

"We're very happy with the decision of the courts on Standard Aggregates," Coun. Booth said. "The main issue he added, is that the minister has the power to say which challenges are frivolous and which are serious cases against the plan."

"But he has to use a lot of discretion in doing that," Coun. Booth said. The Halton Aggregate Producers case will be reviewed at council sometime in the early year. If council decides not to appeal the tribunal's verdict, regional staff and planning committee representatives will sit down with the aggregate association to iron out their disagreements.
