

Huge Scouting parade honors movement founders

North Halton District Beavers, Cubs, Scouts and Venturers and Halton Hills Brownies, Guides, Pathfinders and Rangers, with their leaders and some special guests, paraded from the Georgetown Fairgrounds to Cedarvale Park Sunday for an outdoor church service in memory of the movement's founders, Lord and Lady Baden-Powell. At Cedarvale, Bob Barber of provincial headquarters (above) called the salute for the march past and arranged the colors.

Beavers from several area colonies (above and below) took a somewhat bewildered interest in Sunday's proceedings. District Scout Co-ordinator Dave Shrubsole chaired a special committee for the observances that included Clint Crosswell, John Sharples, Barbara Phipps, Helen Hethberg, Diane Crawford, Evelyn Owen and Elaine Hannah.

On the reviewing stand for the march past in Cedarvale were ex-Queen Scout Don Hick, who spoke on behalf of absent MPP Julian Reed, Mayor Pete Pomeroy, District Commissioner Steve Thompson, District Council President Jean Belshaw, Halton Division Commissioner Barbara Phipps, White Oaks area Commissioner Sandra Franklin and assistant Provincial Commissioner Jim Dills. The various groups in turn recited their promises and oaths and together sang spirituals.

Five-year old Michelle Pilgrim is a big fan of the Georgetown Girls' Pipe Band, accompanying them on marches like Sunday's Scout parade wearing her tartan "mialaklet". Turns out, though, that it's not just the Scottish reels she likes: Michelle's mother, Linda, is one of the pipers. Mrs. Pilgrim and fellow band member Valerie Cunningham piped the Scouts along Sunday.
