Sports in brief

Halton 'athlete' delayed

Plans for the Halton Hills Athlete of the Year have not been scrubbed for 1981 season, although it seems unlikely the date will be the same month, June, as it was last year. Committee member Dave Kenner said recently that there hasn't been time to organize the event and there has been some suggestion of combining the event with the Fall Fair or the opening of the Arts-Library Centre in November. Bob Dudgeon of Miracle Mart, the traditional sponsors of the Sportsbuilder award, says he hasn't been contacted with regards to the event and he's in the dark about when the awards presentation will be held.

'Like father, like son', they say and for Steve and father Stewart Robertson nothing can be more invigorating than competing together in Action's Biathlon last Sunday at Prospect Park. The father-son team finished first in their category. (Herald photo)

Bantam Falcons make final round of tourney

By GEORGE BAINES

Herald Special

The Georgetown Bantam Falcons went to a Waterloo Invitational soccer tournament last Saturday, thanks to the sponsorship from two parents of the boys on the team.

There were two groups of four teams and one from each group qualified for the final. Georgetown was grouped with Saltfleet, Kitchener and London which turned out to be the hardest group.

In the first game for the Falcons, the Georgetown squad beat a powerful Saltfleet team who looked more like junior 'B's by their size. Scoring first after the three minute mark, the Georgetown boys never looked back. The team played good precision soccer, using all the basic skills. The score ended up 3-2. Everyone present agreed it was a triumph of skill and team play that won the game.

Against Kitchener the Falcons registered a 0-0 tie after questionable refereeing pulled the Georgetown team down when no penalties were called in the penalty area. The third game was a must situation for the boys as they needed a win or a tie against London City.

Both teams were now showing wear after two games in the morning. But both gave all they had and played good competitive soccer. Georgetown scored in the last few minutes to come out winners which allowed them to advance to the finals. It was a tremendous physical effort on a warm day.

FINAL GAME
The final played at 11:30 a.m. on the Sunday was anti-climatic. Georgetown had to play Sarnia who had two easy games on the Saturday (one team failed to show in their group). The opposition looked very fresh and strong on the windy field.

The effort to win was beyond our boys' capabilities after giving Sarnia two easy goals, ending in a 9-1 effort for Sarnia. The one goal Georgetown scored was a beautiful bit of soccer of the type they played the previous day.

Sarnia played a good strong game using the wind to their advantage. Unfortunately the referee was the same one who denied us in the Kitchener game and for this game was also inconsistent.

As coach I say well done guys, tremendous show and also thanks to the parents who turned out. Usually at the Bantam age we see very few parents but this group gives tremendous support and help to me as a coach.

One final thanks to Boyfield Homes who have sponsored the team for the amount of $300, allowing us to purchase extra equipment and soccer balls.

Fifth place in Canadian team selection meet for Sara Aggiss

Nationally ranked Georgetown gymnast Sara Aggiss proved last weekend in St. Sault Marie that she indeed belongs among the top competitors in Canada as she finished fifth overall in one of two world selection meets.

The 17 year old must place within the top six in two selection meets if she wants to accompany the Canadian team to Moscow next December. Her placing this weekend puts her in good position to be among the select group that will make the Canadian team.

Sara's next hurdle will be the second world selection meet in the Fall.

Senior Falcons lose to Eagles

The Georgetown senior Falcons soccer club lost a 3-2 heart-breaker to the White Eagles from Burlington last Monday night (June 22).

The team is leaving some gaps when they are attacking and this has to be a factor in the loss, coach Stu Robbins says. "The team is coming around," Robbins says, "but right now we seem to have a hard time putting what we practice into our game experience. We have to get every person doing their own job."

In the game against the White Eagles the Falcon goalie was left open on a number of occasions which enabled the opposition to easily pepper the Georgetown keeper. The coach says that goals for the Falcons should be enough to win the game but defensive lapses have hurt the team.

Robbins says he feels the Falcons can beat any team and they are ready to try against Black Bermuda from Milton next Friday in an away game.

The Falcons have completed five games of a twenty-game schedule and have tied two games and lost three.
