

CVCA turns Esquesing's Fallingbrook Farm into our own 'Wonderland' of nature

By ASTRA PAPE
Herald Staff Writer

Students from Halton and the surrounding area have been "unofficially" learning firsthand how their environment works at the Education Centre in the Silver Creek Conservation Area, but Mississauga South MPP Doug Kennedy made it official June 22.

The Education Centre is located in a renovated barn on what was once Fallingbrook Farm on Sideroad 27 in Halton Hills. The Credit Valley Conservation Authority purchased the 210-acre farm eight years ago and incorporated it into its 1,000-acre Silver Creek Conservation Area. The CVCA operated the farm for three years but was forced to consider using it as an education centre when its program at Terra Cotta Conservation Area became overcrowded.

The Authority hopes that students from Halton and Peel regions and Dufferin and Wellington counties may come to the centre to learn about the Authority's function regarding water, forest, land and wildlife management. The location of the centre is ideal for this purpose, since it lies in the midst of the conservation area. Local MPP Julian Reed and Mayor Pete Pomeroy were also present at Monday's official opening ceremonies, both emphasizing the importance of maintaining good environmental standards and managing the environment we live in properly.

Mr. Kennedy, former parliamentary assistant to the minister of natural resources, said we must protect the natural elements and that the Credit River is a classic example of what can be done. He described it as being one of the cleanest streams around.

Mr. Kennedy was presented with a picture of Fallingbrook Farm from CVCA vice-chairman Ken Whillans as a token of the CVCA's gratitude for his interest in the project.

Various area dignitaries were on hand for the unveiling of the bronze plaque officially opening the Education Centre in the new Silver Creek Conservation Area Monday afternoon. Helping to unveil the plaque are (left to right) Credit Valley Conservation Authority vice-chairman Ken Whillans, Mississauga South MPP Douglas Kennedy, Halton-Burlington MPP Julian Reed, Mayor Pete Pomeroy and Credit Valley Conservation Authority chairman Howard Stewart.

The new Education Centre in the Silver Creek Conservation Area was actually once a horse barn, but after renovations has been converted into a teaching area. It was formally opened Monday afternoon.

Halton 4-H HORSE CLUB

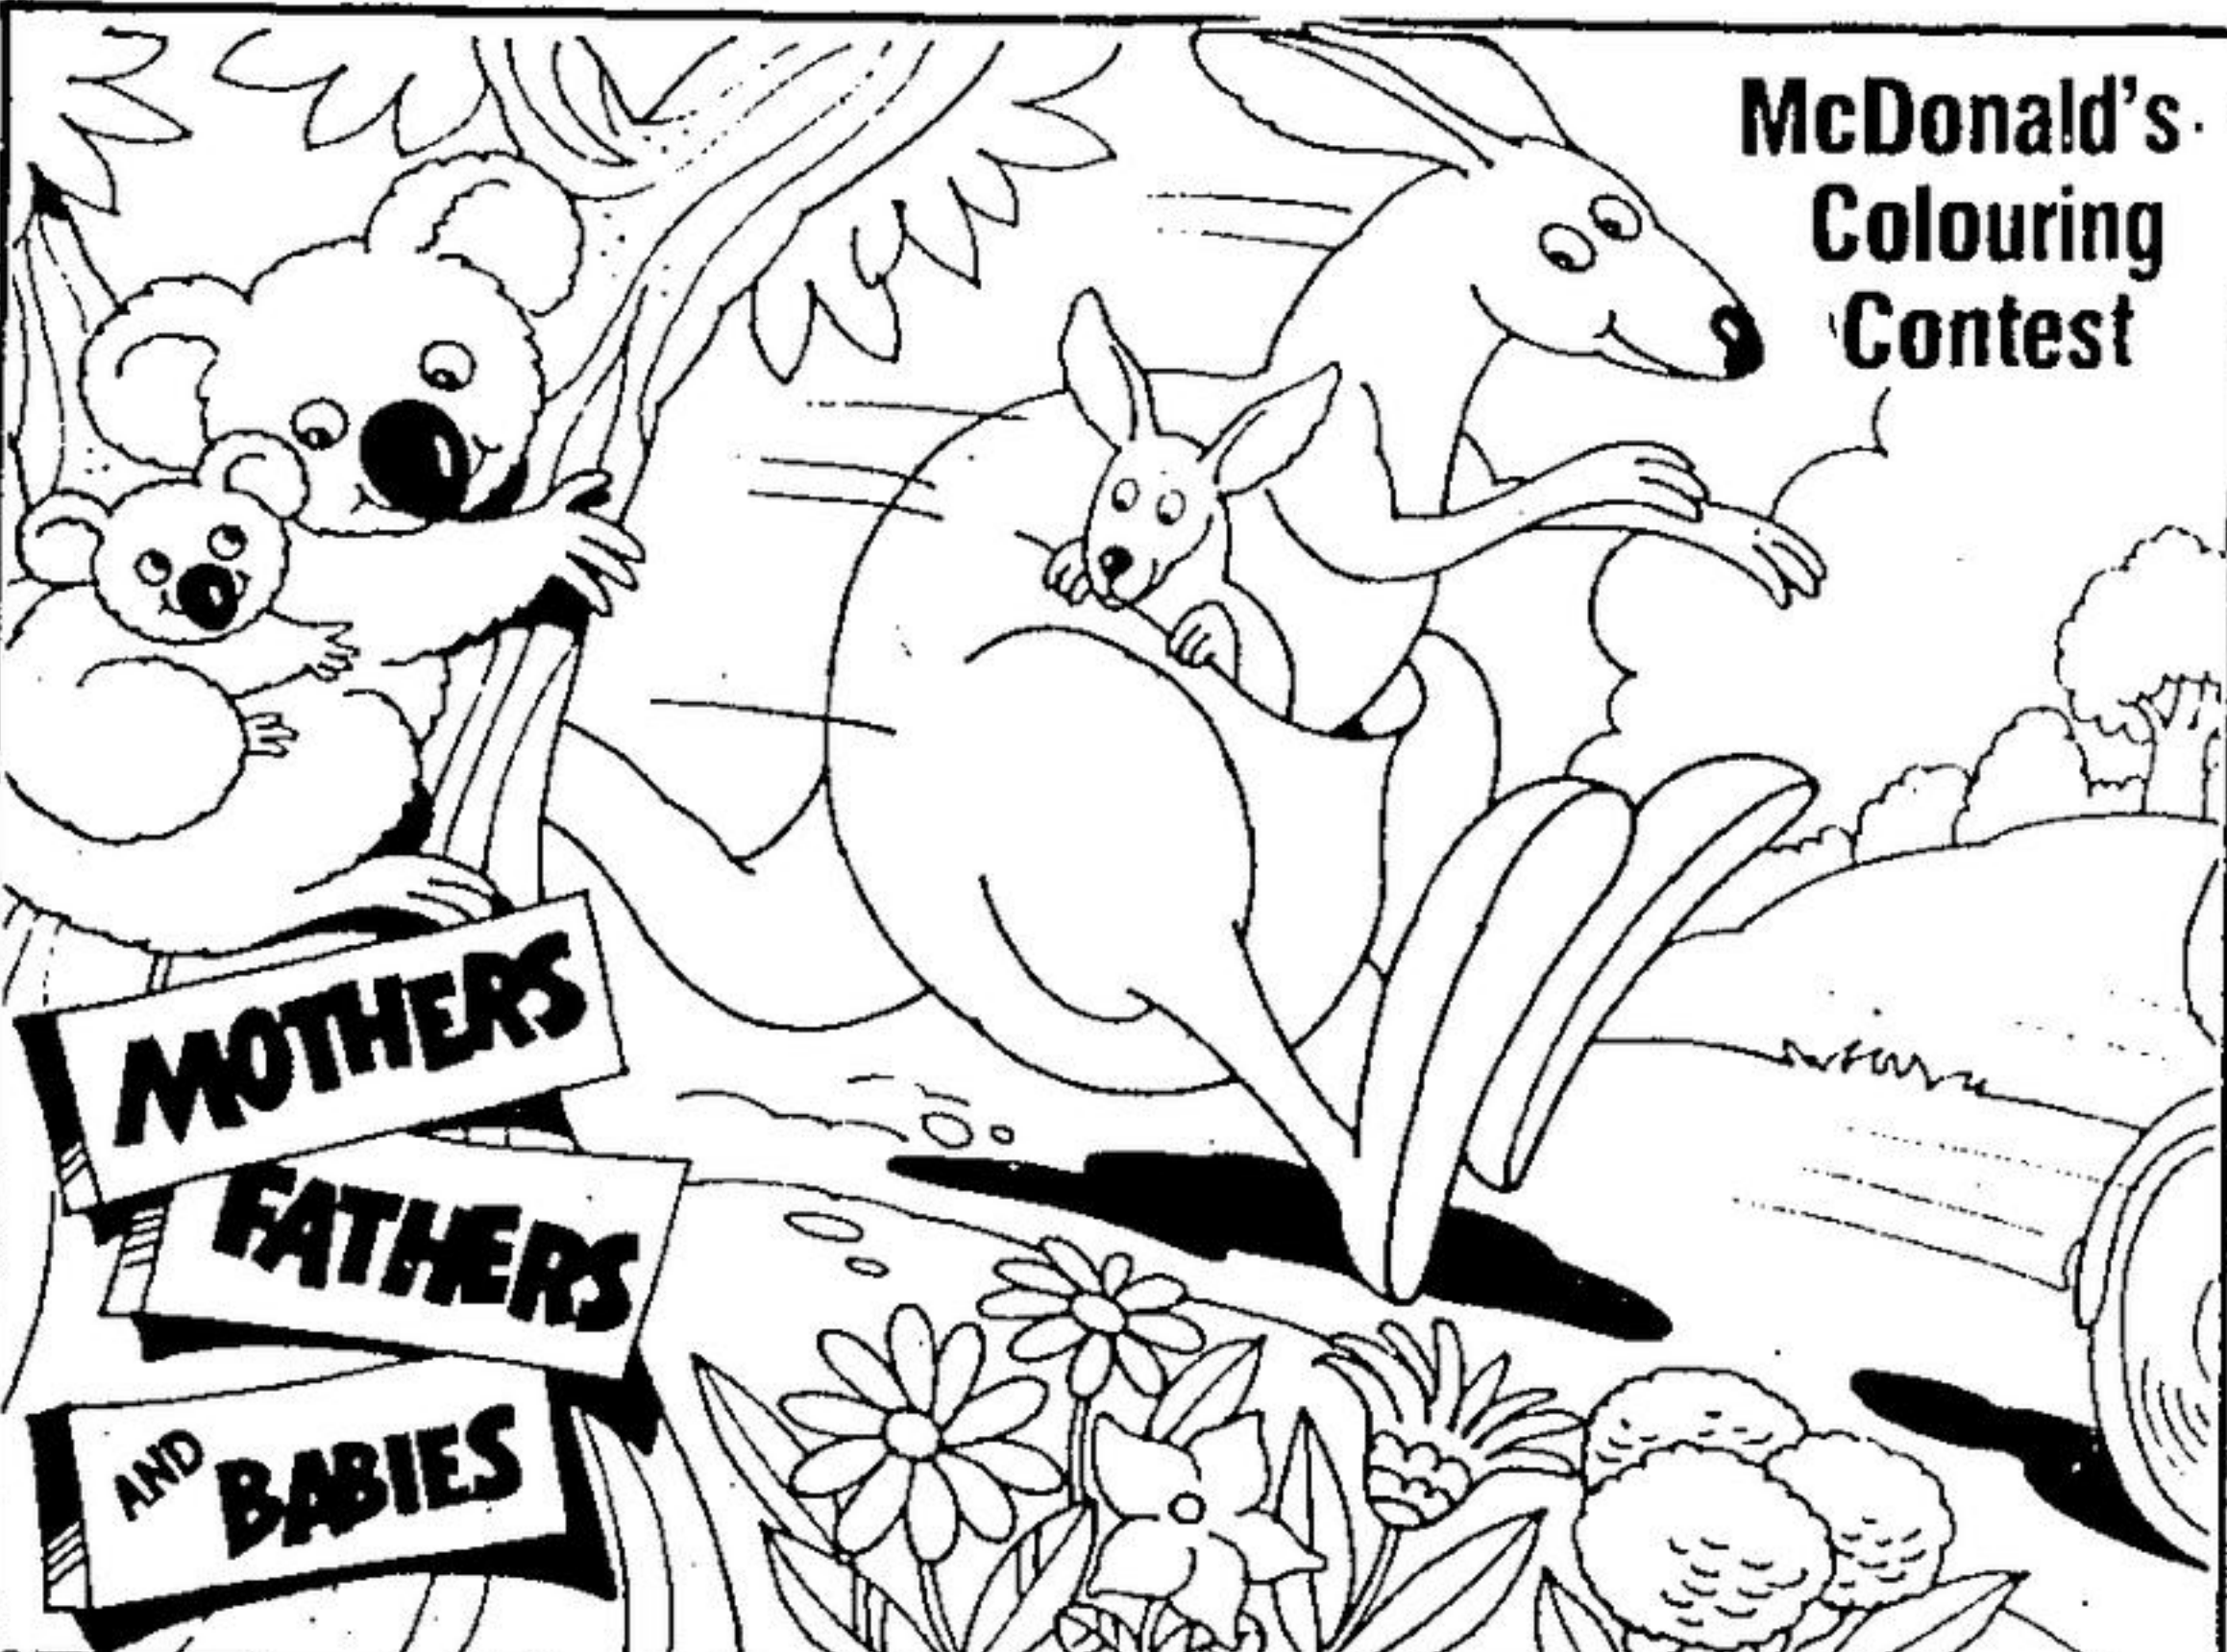

The June meeting of the Halton 4-H Horse Club was held June 4 at Choice Lea Farm owned by Jack Pemberton. The meeting opened by judging a class of his French Coach horses. After the judging, we discussed the official placing. This was followed by a tour of the barns to see his private collection of antique carriages and harness and some of his garments worn during shows. Mr. Pemberton has one of Canada's biggest collections of antique carriages.
