

CRAFTY KIDS

Kathleen Montgomery doesn't seem too sure what to do with her hunk of clay as she and other youngsters were introduced to the medium at the Acton Public Library's craft club Saturday afternoon. The club meets the last Saturday of every month and twice a month during the summer. For two hours, the children can learn new and different crafts and experiment with finger painting, working with watercolors and charcoal prints under the guidance of artisan Bonnie Smith. Last Saturday, the youngsters learned all about clay and got a chance to mold and shape their own creations.

HALTON HILLS ARTS COUNCIL

The new library-theatre complex is eagerly awaited. Soon it will be a reality and a welcome addition to the cultural life of Halton Hills. But what of the interim. As everyone knows, the library has taken up temporary quarters in Guelphview Plaza. Here the staff is valiantly carrying on the library's many services. Come in and browse in air-conditioned comfort. If the book you desire is not in the stacks, ask. A check will be made of the files. Should this reveal that particular volume is not in the possession of our library, a network of inter loans will swing into action. Your book will be tracked down and obtained from another library. While the dissemination of books is the primary function of a library, it is by no means the only one. Records, films and "talking" books are also available. The library's role does not end here. Even in the temporary quarters, many summer programs for children are offered. Here is a partial list of the delights available: Musical Story Hour, Fingerpaint and Pudding Fun, Story Time, Creative Story Hour, United Nations Club, Puppet Club and Pre-school Story Time. For detailed information as to dates, times and age groups, give the library a call.

Our library has it all
