ARTS COUNCIL

Take time and enjoy

Now is a good time to pause for breath. We've just emerged from a heetle round of cultural activity to mark the opening of our new Library and Cultural Centre. Soon we'll be inundated by Christmas craft and art displays and other shows with a Christmas theme. In this period of relative calm, we should take the time to consider just what the Centre is going to mean to the community.

To the Library, it gives the needed space for museum displays, craft courses, children's workshops and the many other activities that are part of the modern library's role in the community. Of course, the library will never forget that Its primary function is to provide reading material of all types for the people it serves.

The gallery offers us the opportunity to see the work of local artists and artisans, as well as providing a place for travelling exhibitions.

The theatre is first and foremost a home for such local groups as the Georgetown Little Theatre, the Choral Society and Globe Productions. Second, it is an ideal facility for musical and theatrical presentations by nationally known artists and groups.

The Arts Council would like to thank those who responded to our questionnaire regarding the type of musical entertainment preferred. In order of preference, they are:

1) Musical comedy

2) Folk and Orchestra (tled)

3) Choral and Jazz (tied) Dates to remember:

This Saturday (Nov. 14) - Mark Crocker, ventriloquist and friend Chester, Acton Public Library at 11 a.m. and Georgetown Public Library at 2 p.m.

Saturday - Billy Bishop Goes to War at the Cultural Centre, 8 p.m. Ticket inquiries - 877-8157.

Saturday and Sunday - Christmas Exhibition and Sale at showroom of Carry Davidson, two miles west of Acton on Highway 7. Phone (519) 853-3065; There will also be an exhibition of Tibetan paintings. All proceeds of painting sales will go to Tibetan refugees. 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Saturday through Dec. 3 - Gallery House Sol presents Alan Dayton - Boxing, equestrian and golf drawings in colored pencil, and Jeffrey Wind's Woodcrafts; Both artists will be present at the gallery Saturday from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Next Tuesday - Dr. Seuss Film Festival at the Georgetown Public Library (10:30 n.m.) and Acton Public Library (2 p.m.).

The children's Christmas show "Once Upon a Time" will be presented by Georgetown Little Theatre Dec. 11, 12 and 13. A change of directors has been necessary due to Vera McDonald's illness, and Ron Hill has taken over at short notice. All tickets are $2.50 (group bookings are available at a reduced rate), and a call to the Box Office at 877-5407 will ensure that tickets are set aside. This show is not part of the subscription series, therefore no seats are reserved. Book now to avoid disappointment.

The draw for the door prize was made following the final performance of Georgetown Little Theatre's "Not. Now, Darling" and the winner is Barbara Baker of Dixon Road in Weston.

Baked goods went first at the St. John's Anglican Church's annual Christmas bazaar Saturday afternoon. About 100 people milled about to look and buy hand-made clothing and gifts, or sat down and had some of the function the parish women made. Evalonne DeForest (left) shows off a hand-knit baby's jacket as her daughter-in-law Bonnie helps man the table.

Play has worthwhile lessons

By ANI PEDERIAN Herald Staff Writer It was too bad, really it was. A marvellous play about a young man's unhappiness with his single-parent home was presented by Theatre-on-the-Move Saturday with the help of students from Georgetown District Christian School and Joseph Gibbons Public School. And there were only 26 people in the John Elliott Theatre to enjoy it. Where were the other 241?

Theatre manager Hank Huhtanen was disappointed with the turn-out. He said he had sent 1,000 folders to all the schools in the area, telling them about the play. "I haven't had a chance to do any other publicity," said Mr. Huhtanen, who has been caught up with the opening of the new cultural centre. If you missed the first performance, the show returns

Nov. 21 and Dec. 5 and 19 at 10:30 a.m. at the Elliott theatre, with tickets at $2 and group rates available by phoning 877-5185, extension 60. Written by Jim Biros, artistic director of the Toronto-based theatre group, "Now and Then" had only three adult actors. The rest were local youngsters who had been rehearsing their parts since 9 a.m. that morning. "Now and Then" is the story

David looks out of place in the forest among a young pioneer family dessed in bonnets and long skirts.

Showing a 1981 quarter and a photograph of himself, David convinces the family that he isn't a spy and is indeed from the year 1981, However, ploneer days prove not to be the ideal David was expecting them to be. David has trouble loading a gun and raising a tent, and gets lost in the woods. But he realizes that single parent families aren't anything new. They existed in 1778 too, when dads went to fight wars.

"Why do you keep blaming yourself for everything?" asks the father of the pioneer family. "Don't waste your time saying 'I'm sorry'.'

David learns he can't escape his problems by imagining hitnself in another century. and returns to his situation in 1981, having learned his lesson.

This is the troupe's 28th original production based on the experiences and fantasies of children. Seeking to create theatre which explores with children the many facets of contemporary family life, the group has done a fine job with 'Now and Then" probing the feelings of a young boy in a single-parent family.
