

REAL FUNNY, EH?
 Okay, so like there's this show on television that has these two guys just sittin' around doin' nothin', eh? And they talk real funny. So, alright, we have no idea what all the fuss is about, okay? But anyhow these kids from Georgetown went down to Toronto's SCTV Diner Friday morning where Q107 radio DJ Scruff Connors was hosting a salute to Bob and Doug Mackenzie, hero-hosts of Second City's Great White North. What started out last year as a last-minute ad libbed filler for the Second City comedy troupe's Network 90 program has become a nationwide fad, even prompting American viewers to don toques and earmuffs, eat back bacon, guzzle Molsons products and talk like this, eh? You know, like Canadians, eh? Among the literally hundreds who lined up to watch Connors tape his show were (in photo below, left to right) Doug Taylor, Dean Irvine, that's Scruff, and Alison Irvine. Dean's and Alison's dad Rob Irvine treated the youngsters to a glimpse of their all-Canadian heroes, and also took these photos.

Berry Farm estate homes set for approval

Private road concerns about a proposed subdivision slated for property located south of Speyside appear to have been resolved. The region's administration and finance committee has approved the plan, paving the way for the six-home Berry Farm development. The estate homes will be built on an existing farm operation and serviced by a private road leading to Highway 25. Earlier, Halton Hills council expressed concern about the private road, fearing residents would eventually insist that the town take over its maintenance. As a condition of sale, homeowners will be advised that the road is private and that they will be responsible for its maintenance throughout the year.

MacEachen no Robin Hood - MP

Among the Opposition MPs who took turns in the House of Commons criticizing the Liberal government's Nov. 12 budget was Halton Conservative MP Otto Jelinek, who called any suggestion that finance minister Allan MacEachen had authored a "Robin Hood budget" a myth.

OTTO JELINEK
 men, who are already in dire straits, are saddled with considerably higher income taxes, some 20 times higher than last year, while the wealthy in the

"In his budget...the minister attempted to point out a myth whereby the rich would suffer while middle class Canadians and small business would benefit. In other words, his Robin Hood approach to tax reform," Mr. Jelinek told the House.

"Now a number of nationally recognized accounting firms... have in fact determined that the majority of small business-$200,000 to $300,000 bracket will in fact enjoy a reduced rate."

The MP, who represents Action voters among others, asked Mr. MacEachen to justify the budget's "negative effect" on small businesses for which Mr. Jelinek is responsible in the Tory "shadow Cabinet".

The finance minister claimed that the budget offers "considerable benefits" for small businessmen and pointed out that, immediately after its presentation, bank rates were reduced "substantially", directly aiding small business.

"Madam Speaker," Mr. Jelinek said, "anyone who believes that small business has not been hurt by this minister's budget is either a fool or a Liberal."

"Both," one unidentified member joked.

Mr. Jelinek asked the minister to introduce a mid-budget "in the very near future" or otherwise "rectify the inequities which have resulted in (damages)".

Mr. MacEachen said he would take no such action but again offered to sit down with dissenting MPs to defend his budget's "main" objective of establishing within the tax system "more justice".

Protect land rights, McDermid tells House

From the Ottawa Bureau of The Herald

Despite recent progress in the constitutional debate, Brampton-Georgetown MP John McDermid said in a House of Commons speech this week property rights should be protected in a Canadian constitution.

"To my way of thinking," he told the Commons, "the cornerstone of democracy is the right to own property."

Mr. McDermid said the property rights issue should be a top priority when the next matter of constitutional amendment is discussed by the premiers of the provinces. "I am sure that during the past year many Canadians have regarded the constitutional debate with a good deal of indifference, and I can appreciate that reaction.

"Unemployment, inflation, high interest rates and other bread and butter issues have had a more immediate impact on people's lives.

"Just last Saturday (Nov. 21) I marched with a group of concerned Bramptonians headed by two very courageous women; Kathy Denley and Marlene Grant. Here on Parliament Hill they urged that the present constitutional matters be completed as quickly as possible and that work on economic matters take precedence."

Mr. McDermid told the Commons this week he hopes "we will all be guided in the next few weeks and in future Constitutional change to uphold the human and political freedoms that we tend to take for granted."

Our foodstores' scales will soon go metric

Herald Special
 Starting Jan. 4, food stores in the Georgetown area will convert their scales to weigh food in grams and kilograms. The conversion program is expected to be complete by Feb. 28.

A Metric Commission Canada spokesman says the conversion is part of a national changeover from Imperial units like pounds, ounces, yards, miles, gallons and degrees Fahrenheit to metres, kilograms, litres and degrees Celsius that began in 1971.

Shoppers here have bought pre-packaged food in metric units for several years, often without recognizing the change. But now, in the last stage of conversion to world-standard metric measures of all kinds, items that are individually weighed in the store will also be purchased on a metric basis. Items affected include meat, poultry, fish, cheese, fruit, vegetables, nuts and candy.

From the start, grocery advertising will show prices in both metric and Imperial units. For example, ground meat might be advertised at both $3.30 per kilogram and $1.50 per pound. Under the provisions of the Weights and Measures regulations, advertising stating prices in both metric and Imperial units will be allowed to continue until the end of December, 1983. After this date, metric units will be used exclusively.

Metric Commission Canada has prepared an extensive public awareness program. As part of it, information pamphlets and posters will be available in the stores to help shoppers adapt to metric units.

It was also announced that a service to respond to consumer complaints during the changeover has been established by Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada. As a first step, consumers are asked to discuss any difficulties - such as apparent price discrepancies - with the manager of the store involved. Then, if the matter cannot be resolved satisfactorily, consumers are invited to contact the nearest of the department's 27 district offices across Canada where the complaint will be followed.
