Last Tuesday at Hillcrest Church, with Mrs. J. Wicks as hostess, the Christmas meeting of the Women's Institute was held with 30 members sitting down to beautifully decorated tables in the Christmas colors, the work of Mrs. J. McPhail, Mrs. F. Nurse, Mrs. Pat Stark and enjoyed a lovely pot luck luncheon.

Pres. Mrs. G. Treviranus opened the meeting with a Christmas poem, Roll Call was answered by each one explaining the wrapping on their gift. Thanks were read from Acti-Van for our donation. The workshop at Artell Jan. 25 was announced. A committee was appointed for a eucure, also a dance later on.

Mrs. Bruce McClure was in charge of the program and had all sing some Christmas carols, the motto was a Christmas story by Lula Dixon memories of a long ago Christmas.

Then the guest speaker, Sandra Marling, demonstrated making articles for Christmas with styrofoam, pinecones, pieces of colored felt and glue such as table-favors, tree ornaments, door-stops and pretty place mats made with any kinds of cards and covered with sheets of Mac-tac. Mrs. G.

Wood presented her with a lovely poinsettia to show our thanks.

After an exchange of gifts meeting closed with a light refreshment of punch and cookies.

December Sundays have been busy ones for the children. On the sixth they brought White Gifts for the poor children who wouldn't get anything at Christmas. The 13th was their big day as they presented a play "The Living Christmas" written by Mrs. Peggy Kanpp and directed by Sylvia Tyhurst, the costumes were so good on the Three Wise Men, the bevy of Angels, the Shepherds, Joseph and Mary and baby Jesus in the Manger all did their parts so well.

Last Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Thos Blackett entertained 51 of their relatives in their home for a happy reunion this Christmas tide. Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Francis Thompson who celebrated their 48th wedding anniversary Dec. 29. Many more to them both.

To the editor and the staff who make this paper possible every week and to all who read it, we say Merry Christmas. May your season be filled with togetherness and the deep satisfaction of sharing, for this after all is what Christmas means.

GDHS at Waterloo

Georgetown District High School students visited the University of Waterloo Friday as an introduction to computer sciences. More than 9,000 secondary school students took part in the program last year in which university staff conduct introductory lectures and workshops, something the school has been offering for the past 16 years.
