

PIONEER FEAST

Pioneer Girls of all ages gathered at Georgetown's Mountainview Baptist Church last Tuesday night to feast and celebrate at their mother, daughter and pal banquet. After the banquet, the girls were presented with awards highlighting their achievements the past year. Pioneer Girls who invited their mother or pal to the banquet were: (front row, left to right) Karen Venema, Cara Cogon, Nancy Walraven, Liz Weststeyn; (second row) Tracy Barwegen, Tanya Marissen, Janet Morrow, Janelle Vlaser, Lydia Copland, Michelle Wouda; (third row) Diana Morrow, Stacy Windsor, Vanessa Ledlard; (fourth row) Tricia Oosterhof, Sheila Braam, Nicole Marissen, Allison Weststeyn; (fifth row) Colleen Stone, Debbie Scrase, Samantha Windsor, Melissa Handy, Stacey Bell, Kara-Ann Barker and Krista Chapman.

It was a first for the Pioneer Girls of Georgetown. (Left to right) Nancy Walraven, Tricia Oosterhof, Allison Weststeyn and Liz Weststeyn are the first Pioneer Girls ever in Georgetown to get the highest award for their age group. They received their pins last Tuesday night after their mother, daughter and pal banquet.

Bang-o-rama

play will proceed more smoothly and there will be fewer problems for the club if people observe the safety perimeter around the display.

Bring binoculars or (for those seeking a photographic challenge), cameras to the grand finale and plan to include a trip to Maple Lodge's chicken firepit to round out the night. It's also not a bad idea to have a sweater or a blanket handy to ward off chills. If the unimaginable happens, the Optimists have set aside May 29 as Bang-o-rama's rain date. It's the first big, recreational event of the summer and everyone's invited to become part of the anticipated 12,000 people looking for a great way to unwind.
