Chocolate dream cake

 Chocolate Dream competition will be similar to last year with a few minor changes and these, along with entry forms, will be available soon through the Ladies Section of the Agricultural Society.

All bakers are reminded, says Mrs. Gosling, that all cakes must be made with Neilsen cocoa and entries accompanied by proof of this ingredient. Judges will look primarily at the quality of the cake, with points for originality and overall appearance as well.

Again this year, the Ladies Section will be selling tickets at the fair for a Lucky Draw on a large chocolate cow specially created by Neilsen's. At last year's fair the chocolate cow was so popular that all tickets were sold out prior to the afternoon draw.

Georgetown Fair will be earlier this year, Sept. 10, 11, 12. Mrs. Gosling is hopeful that the early dates of the fair will not curtail the amount of kitchen experimentation that will be required for the "Chocolate Dream" Cake competition and that the number of entries will not be affected.

"There has been a considerable amount of interest shown throughout the area in our chocolate cake contest at the fair," reports Mrs. Gosling. "Perhaps some day, Georgetown will become known as the home of the best chocolate cakes (and the best bakers) in the country! We hope lots of people - men, women and youngsters - will enter our current competition."
 - Bon appetit!

Halton 4-H keeps busy with clubs owing this, Ken McNabb showed us how to tie a calf up. We all tried to tie a halter on to a post, even though some of us got confused. over to Frances Chisholm. She thanked the DaRe family for letting us have a meeting at their farm. We had donuts and soft drinks.

HALTON 4-H SHEEP CLUB
 By PAULA MARTIN
 Halton 4-H

For our meeting May 10, the Halton 4-H Sheep Club visited the establishment of Mike and Heather Comba near Campbellville. In this small operation of about 25 sheep, we learned how to judge mature Suffolk ewes and spring ewe lambs. First of all, Doug Gardhouse explained the good and bad points of the Suffolk breed. We then judged a class of Suffolk spring ewe lambs, which placed 4, 3, 1 and finally 2. After judging the Suffolk spring ewe lambs, we then judged the class of mature Suffolk ewes which also placed 4, 3, 1 and then 2. After judging both classes, we tried to match each Suffolk spring ewe lamb with its mother, which was in the mature Suffolk ewe class. After the judging had finished, we all went inside (away from the mosquitoes) for a hearty, country meal of hot dogs and chocolate milk.

The Halton 4-H Sheep Club greatly appreciate the kind hospitality of Mike and Heather Comba, wishing them success in the future.

HALTON 4-H JUNIOR DAIRY CALF CLUB
 By SANDRA EGGER
 Halton 4-H

The second meeting of the Halton 4-H Junior Dairy Calf Club was held at Gino DaRe's farm May 17. Frances Chisholm opened the meeting with the 4-H pledge. Then the meeting was turned over to our leader, Jeff Nurse. We had to judge two classes of Holstein cows and gave reasons on them. Ken McNabb gave booklets out on Nutrient Requirements for Beef and Dairy animals. We reviewed it, then had 10 questions to answer. Following this, Ken McNabb showed us how to tie a calf up. We all tried to tie a halter on to a post, even though some of us got confused. over to Frances Chisholm. She thanked the DaRe family for letting us have a meeting at their farm. We had donuts and soft drinks.

HALTON 4-H SWINE CLUB
 By NEIL GILLIES
 Halton 4-H

May 19 the Halton 4-H Swine Club held their second meeting at Lozy Pat Farms, Palermo. After Lance Pocock, our 4-H Leader, showed us the pictures of his baseball team and his 2-headed pig, we talked about putting an entry in Milton's 125th Anniversary parade. A trip to the Pork Congress was also discussed. Then we saw Mr. Pocock's swine operation, during which everyone guessed the weight of a pig. The prize was a Pork Producers hat (the actual weight was 70 lbs.) which Neil Davis and Wayne Paul won with a correct guess of 70 lbs.

We were served refreshments while watching a slide show about cross breeding Market pigs which was brought by Doug Miller. The meeting was adjourned.
