

Norval

Joint W.I. trip to Kitchener

By KAY WILSON
Herald Correspondent
Norval W.I. members along with Limehouse W.I. enjoyed a bus trip to the Farmers Market at Kitchener last Wednesday.

Convenors of Consumer Affairs Gisela Malchin and Lilo Dahnert arranged the day and 35 ladies shopped through the market area. Blingeman's Park served a lovely smorgasbord for the noon luncheon.

Arriving back at Norval a brief meeting of the Norval W.I. was held in the church basement, chaired by Dorothy McLean.

Roll call was name an article "you have thrown out and that you should have kept," or "what you bought at the market".

Business included: Delegates to Area Convention at Arthur Oct. 21 and 22 were chosen along with Jean May.

Amy Burk brought members up to date on the display she planned to set up for Georgetown Fair.

Letter from Dublin W.I. branch inviting us to their "At Home" Oct. 17 in Knox Presbyterian church, Acton.

Also a discussion on "Referendum for Disarmament" and whether to debate this topic at a meeting, asking us to vote "yes" when the referendum comes up.

Area people were saddened to learn of the death of the Dr. Stewart Macdonald who died Sept. 9 in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, after suffering a brain hemorrhage.

Dr. Stewart was the youngest son of Rev. Ewan Macdonald and L. M. Montgomery, former residents of Norval when her father was minister of Norval Presbyterian Church. Several area people attended the memorial service for Betty Walker at Grace United Church, Brampton last Saturday at 7 p.m. The service was conducted by the Rev. Walter Ridley and daughter Shawn gave the eulogy.

Betty represented this area on the Ward 2 seat for the Halton board of education, and was a member of the Pinegrove Community club. Her many friends and neighbors will miss her cheerful personality. Our sympathy goes out to her family and her uncle Art May.

Several local boys placed well at the Halton Flowing match last Saturday at the farm of Harold and Norm Bigger of Upper Base Line, Oakville.

At the banquet held in St. Stephens Church, Hornby that evening some of the prize winners were Chas. Bird, David Wilson, Wayne Cunningham, Paul Wilkinson, Phil Shea and Stewart McPhail.

Halton will also be represented at the International-Flowing Match at Lucan, in Middlesex County Sept. 28 to Oct. 2 in the Queen of the Furrow competition by Susan Livingstone of Hornby. Congratulations to all.

Innocent protected?

Upset that Canada's laws seem to protect criminals while forgetting about the victims of crime, an Etobicoke organization is drumming up support for "Petition One" and has already solicited signatures from Mississauga mayor Hazel McCallion and members of her council. The petition, which could appear shortly in Halton Hills, demands tighter bail and parole laws "so that the innocent and not the guilty will be protected", imprisonment of persons convicted of violent crime for maximum periods and that persons sentenced to life imprisonment not be released on parole. Individuals wanting to help spread the petition or comment on its demands may write to P.O. Box 83, Islington Station "B", Etobicoke, Ontario, M9C 4X9.

'Terry' extras still needed

If you missed your chance locally to be an extra in "Terry", the $2.5 million feature film being made about Terry Fox, you can have another opportunity Sunday in Toronto. Thousands of extras are needed for the sequence showing Terry (Eric Fryer) running along University Avenue. Shooting starts about 12:30 p.m. Don't forget, though, Sunday's also the Terry Fox Run, and Canadian Cancer Society sponsors are counting on your help in Georgetown (Fairgrounds Park), Acton (high school), Toronto and elsewhere to raise funds for cancer research.

Fashionable fair

A Georgetown retailer has been invited by Brampton's fall fair board to hold a fashion show at the Brampton fair Saturday. Jackie Ross, proprietor of Jackie's Ladies' wear on Mountainview Road South, told The Herald she'll be showing a fall and winter line of apparel from Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver and has recruited seven area models to help out. Sixty-four clothing changes are planned in the show which is expected to begin in the arena at the Brampton fairgrounds at 1:30 p.m. Centennial School teacher June Lenz will provide commentary. Mrs. Ross has previously held a number fashion shows at Georgetown's North Halton Golf and Country Club.

Murder trial set

The first week of November has been set aside for the trial of Bradley James Fendley, 21, of Georgetown. Mr. Fendley was charged with first degree murder in the shooting death of Donald Joseph Berriau, 30, of Erin March 24. Following a preliminary trial in June which determined there was enough evidence for the case to go to trial, Mr. Fendley elected to be tried in Ontario Supreme Court. The case will be heard in Guelph. Halton regional police arrested Mr. Fendley and David McClean, 22 in connection with the discovery of Mr. Berriau's dead body in his farmhouse. At the time of the arrest in Georgetown's Silvercreek Towers, Mr. McClean shot himself fatally with a 20-gauge sawed-off shotgun.

Tickets! Tickets!

There are still tickets available for the twin Super Sundays series being staged at John Elliott Theatre by the University Women's Club. Magician Ron Oliver kicks things off Oct. 31 and there are great things to follow. Buy a $8 for three shows geared to children in kindergarten to Grade 3 or a $4 ticket for the two shows for older children. Call 877-8414, 877-7879 or 877-1565 for tickets.
