In game one, against the Hamilton Huskies, Georgetown took a first period lead on goals by Adam Bennett and Travis Gardiner ton a power-

Halfway through the second period, the Huskles connected from behind the net. The game tightened up considerably and with only eight seconds remaining Hamilton scrambled for the equalizer.

Game two was against the Michigan Angels familiar competition from last year's tourney. It soon became abvious that the Bulls had only changed their name, not their rough and ready style.

The Angels had a two goal lead before Brant Presswood got Georgetown on track when he
