Herald special

The Georgetown cross country team won the Peel-Halton championship last Wednesday for its eighth consecutive year and qualified all six teams (30 runners) to the provincial (OFSAA) meet to be held this Saturday.

In order to qualify for OFSAA and school must place any of its divisional teams either first or second in their district. Georgetown's midget girls, senior girls, midget boys and junior boys all won their respective divisions, while the junior girls and senior boys teams took second places.

Amy Powers led the midget girls to victory in a race containing 59 runners with a strong second place finish, timing 11:22.

She was only 11 seconds behind the winner, Brenda Steenhot, from Milton, whose team placed second in the division, 22 points behind Georgetown's winning score of 26.

Nancy Mustard was the next Rebel runner to cross the line, placing third, in a time of 11:31.

Sandy Heaton placed tenth timing 12:23, followed by Anne Coulligan in eleventh position. Linda Wenham came 13th and Michelle Barnard placed 23rd.

In the junior girls race of 64 runners Lynn Macphail was the first runner to cross the line for Georgetown in third place, with a time of 14:48.

The Rebels' total of 42 was only nine points behind Nelson's winning score of 33 points.

HEATON FOURTH

Fiona Heaton ran well for Georgetown placing fourth, and timing 15:54. She was followed by Shawn Langdon, 15th, and Karen Pepper, 20th.

Laura Groskorth, a first year midget did very well in the junior division, finishing 23rd. Paula Hansen was 43rd and Anne Ramsay came 50th.

Georgetown's senior girls had the lowest (best) point total of the day, with a score of 15. Second place Clarkson's score of 29 points, which would normally be a very good score, was no match for the senior girl powerhouse from Georgetown.

MARCINIUK FIRST

Sandra Marcinluk led the girls to their victory by winning the race clocking a swift 20:19 — a good 29 seconds in front of the second place runner from Clarkson.

Susan Kristensen was the next runner in for Georgetown, placing third, in a time of 20:51. Kim Newcombe flew to a fourth place finish timing a quick 20:58. Debbie Newman placed seventh, timing 21:25 and Jen Pepper came in for a strong eleventh position. The race contained 47 competitors.

The midget boys cleaned their division, claiming victory with a low score of only 20 points. Even second place Milton trailed by 53 points.

WOOD-BRAUND, 1-2
Following Mike Wood's win of a 17:39 clocking was Pat Braund, finishing in a solid second position, timing 18:05. Greg Mackenzie followed ten seconds late in fourth place. Behind him came Darren Boudreau, 13th, Norm Macphail, 50th and Graham Shepherd, 72nd.

In the junior boys victory, the Rebels, scoring 35, had a good 25 point spread on second place Nelson, totalling 60 points.

Erik Hopkins, who won the event, booted to a 20:27 clocking. Behind him came Chris Ferguson, sixth, at 21:45, and Paul Watts, ninth, timing 22:09.

They were followed by David Banks, 19th, Bob Lovegrove, 21st and Ken Hesse, 35th.

In one of the more competitive divisions, the senior boys team battled illness, injury and doubt to qualify for the provincials by placing a solid second in their division.

The team's score of 68 points trailed an incredibly strong team from Nelson (who placed first) by 38 points, but was a comfortable (?) 12 points ahead of third place Clarkson who totalled 60 points. Georgetown's third and fourth runners, who fought injury and illness respectively (as well as agonizing pain) still somehow managed to finish the race.

BRANSCH NINTH

Harald Bransch was the first Rebel runner to cross the line, in a strong ninth position, timing 27:58.

Stacey Wheeler came in for tenth place at 28:06. He was followed by Jack Harlow, 21st at 29:43 and Scott Harris, who finished 28th.

Dalton Newcombe ran well placing 34th, while Gary Britton was 40th and Nick Parker, and first year junior came 42nd.

Raiders sign Ampleford, Fry

Collingwood here Friday

The Georgetown Chrysler Raiders should be out ready for revenge when they host the Collingwood Shipbuilders Friday at home.

The Raiders were defeated by Collingwood last Friday 5-3. Three players have been signed this week which could make the Georgetown team's chances of winning even better than before.

Tim Ampleford, formerly of the Senior A Dundas Merchants and one-time Senior A and Intermediate A leading scorer, has signed with the Raiders.

In addition, centre Doug Fry of the former Milton Intermediate B franchise has signed. Fry played outstanding hockey for the Raiders in the Hardy Cup playoffs, filling in for an injured Rick Kessell.

Jim Long, a defenceman formerly for the Thornhill Thunderbirds and a Tier 2 team.

Meanwhile, Mike Green of the now defunct Owen Sound Greys has signed with Collingwood and he should help their team.
