

OUR RUGGED REBELS

A rugged hike along the Bruce Trail from its northern end at Tobermory to Cypress Lake Provincial Park kept the Georgetown District High School Outers Club healthy and happy last weekend. No one was deterred by the cold temperatures and snow on the challenging fall hike, which came one month after the Outers' fall canoe trip. Posing for a group photo were (front row, left to right) Ian Brown, teacher Chris

Herald Special Halton Young Progressive Conservatives president Saskia Van Tetering was acclaimed sixth vice-president of the provincial organization at a weekend convention in Burlington.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Van Tetering, RR2, Rockwood, the 21-year-old French and political science student is attending Erindale College. The family moved to the area from Mississauga a year ago.

Miss Van Tetering said she is the only member of her family actively involved in politics although her parents are aware and interested in politics. She first became involved as a Grade 13 student when she worked on an election campaign.

As one of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Youth Association's nine vice-presidents, she will be expected to be responsible for and work closely with the local riding association YPC groups in several ridings close to her home. She will also be involved in several OPCYA committees. "I'm interested and it seems a good way to learn the whole political process," she said.

Cub aid project

Area Scouts and Cubs continue striving to meet the Crawford Lake Challenge issued earlier this year by co-ordinator Elaine Hannah and her Limehouse Cubs. To date, $119 has been raised by the boys themselves to help out a $700,000 Indian village restoration project at Crawford Lake in Milton.

Elkettes marching everywhere, but tomorrow's their Big Show

BPO ELKS Lodge 540
of Halton Hills

By TAMMY GOWER
senior Elkette

The Halton Hills Elkettes have had a busy week and many more are to follow.

The 20 members of the junior and senior corps travelled to Kitchener for the Santa Claus Parade, which was being televised. Despite the bitter cold, the girls performed well, but were pleased to return to the bus.

Afterwards, the 35 members of the juvenile corps joined the others to perform in the Milton Santa Claus Parade. The bitter cold was again unbearable, but the girls managed to end with a smile. The juvenile corp, with girls ranging from age 4 to 7, performed exceptionally well despite the cold.

A special thanks is given to the parents also attending both parades for their support.

The same night (Nov. 13) the parents held a fifties and sixties dance which went over well. The dance was a total success and the money raised will be put to good use. On behalf of the Elkettes, I'd like to thank all those who attended this dance, and we look forward to seeing you all during the many activities and fund-raisers throughout the year.

A little reminder to all about the Georgetown Santa Claus Parade this weekend and the Acton parade Nov. 27, which the Elkettes will be attending. We're looking forward to seeing you and giving a good show.

For those interested, the Elkettes are forming a drum corps this year. Anyone interested in the drum corp or majorette corps may call Diana Tripp at 877-5688. New members are always welcome.

Region hires expert

North Halton councillors have argued that a strong regional business development office would draw new businesses to Milton and Halton Hills, towns only slightly out of the way of the major business corridor to the south.

Mr. Bush is expected to begin work with the region early in December. He will be one of five members of the region's business development department.

Canadian artists are once again well represented in UNICEF's 1982 Christmas greeting card collection. Works by Ken Danby, Rosalie Lane and David Milne have been donated to UNICEF this year, emphasizing the continuing efforts of Canadians on behalf of the world's children.
