Brian Hayward makes NHL debut

Georgetown native Brian Hayward got his chance to play his first NHL game when the Winnipeg Jets called him up from Sherbrooke of the AHL.

Georgetown's own Brian Hayward made his NHL debut with the Winnipeg Jets Wednesday night after being promoted from Sherbrooke of the American Hockey League.

The 22-year-old netminder, who graduated with a distinguished hockey career at Cornell University, stopped 25 shots in the Jets 6-3 victory against the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Winnipeg coach Tom Watt said, "he (Hayward) played really well. I thought there was one bad goal when he was caught deep in his crease."

Hayward's first goal that he let by was on a rebound which wasn't his fault. Rick Valve shot the puck and Dan Daoust slipped in the rebound.

Rick Valve scored the second Leaf goal from the crease area. The third goal by Stewart Gavin narrowed the Jets lead to 4-3. Gavin scored from a 40 foot slapshot. Coach Watt thought Hayward could have closed down the angle more on.

In Sherbrooke Hayward has a 7-10-3 record and a 4.42 goals against average but he is playing for a team that has the worst record in the 13 team AHL.

It is reported that Jet's chief scout, Les Binkley recommended Hayward.

At Cornell Hayward had a 3.08 goal-against average and he was the team's captain. He signed with the Winnipeg Jets as a free agent.

The Jets, apparently, in calling up Hayward, wanted to have a look at the young goaltender in hope that he could spark the team out of their 0-3-1 record in the past four games.

No indication was made whether he would stay on with the team past Wednesday's game.

Winnipeg Jet's first star of the game, Willy Lindstrom, said about Hayward: "You can't ask for any better - he was terrific tonight."

Intermediate Midland A's coach fired

Midland Athletic coach Earl Scott was fired Sunday by owner-assistant coach-defenceman Hugh Robertson.

He was fired because the team was not playing as well as expected. Robertson expected the club to be a solid third and instead the club was a disappointing fourth, at the time of the firing.

The last straw for Robertson was a 11-3 loss to Collingwood Friday night, following which manager Shawn Stewart resigned. Stewart told Robertson he was resigning because he had other things he was tied up with.

Robertson and former 'A' player Ross Cousineau will share the coaching duties for the rest of the year.

Former Brantford Jr. John Webber, who also played Intermediate in Midland, will be interim GM.
