SMALL FRIES

When whole families fish together, something good comes of it. Even mothers could be seen taking their sons for a day's outing last weekend. That is what opening of the trout season does to people. Popular spots were the Credit River and local conservation areas. Pay-as-you-go fishing ponds also drew lots of people, with the guarantee of trout ready to be caught. Of course there were some die hard fishermen who started at midnight, the official opening time.

UNICEF announces its new Spring line of greeting cards, personalized stationery, notes, gift items and of course special occasion cards and calendars! This year's selection, now on sale, ranges from contemporary artists' designs to magnificent reproductions, all of which have been donated from around the world for use by UNICEF.

When you send a UNICEF card you are sending two messages: one to someone you care for and one to the world's most needy children in 111 developing countries. UNICEF works in partnership with the governments of these countries to establish programs aimed at extending basic services for children and mothers.

These services include the provision of clean water and sanitation, primary health care, improved nutrition, child care, functional literacy as well as other services benefiting children.

Over the past three decades, an estimated 60 million people have benefited from UNICEF-supported water and sanitation programs. Last year alone, UNICEF Canada provided assistance to 30 development projects in 24 countries in addition to three emergency-relief and rehabilitation projects in China, Lebanon and Uganda.

Profits from card sales in Canada are matched dollar for dollar by the Canadian Government and, again, in the recipient country - so your purchase can go a long way to create a brighter future for children around the world.

For example, a $5 purchase will provide enough vaccine to immunize approximately 250 children against the triple threat of diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.
