Who is ahead?

To the editor of The Herald:
Who is "ahead"? Who is "behind"? Must we "keep up"? It is time that these kind of arguments for continuing the arms race were stopped.
No one in the peace movement is saying that we should scrap every weapon we have while the Soviets do nothing. What is critical now is to stop producing more weapons, and to convince world leaders on all sides that it is they who are standing in the way of what everyone on earth surely wants - global nuclear disarmament and prevention of the almost inevitable holocaust.
Time is short. If you stand behind him in this initiative, say so.
Yours truly
Janet Duval

Taylor thanks election help

To the Editor of The Herald

I would like to take this opportunity through your newspaper to convey my sincere thanks to the residents of Ward 2 in the town of Halton Hills who supported me at the polls on October 24th.
Very special thanks go to those terrific people who helped with my campaign by door-knocking, mail box stuffing, passing the word recommending me to others, providing information and advice, allowing my signs on their lawn and generally encouraging me in every way.
Each candidate entered the election race for his or her own reason but also realising that he or she would have to represent all of Ward 2 and not just the area in which the candidate lives. So, while congratulating Jake Kulken on his successful campaign, I would ask him to remember the issues that concern residents throughout Ward 2 and during the next two years strive to address those issues and be truly representative of the people.

HALLOWEEN HIJINKS

Little Cherub Nursery School located at Maple Ave. Baptist Church held a special Halloween party for the children Friday, bringing together characters like (Snurf) Anne Beaver and (Skunk) Michael Carter.

Librarian Carol Buchanan, sporting her best clown suit for the children's Halloween party at the Georgetown Public Library on Saturday, saved her scariest ghost tales for these three spooks. Witch Kaylie Finns, 5, ghost Ryan Crawford, 6, and pirate Tim Hunter, 6, were all ready for trick-or-treating Monday night. (Herald photo)

The devil made me do it! Todd Busell, 4, and his witch-like friend Katie MacFarlane, 4 gang up on their teacher at the Halton Hills Kinderschool Friday during a Halloween party. Colleen Haddon, the owner of the school located at St. John's United on Guelph St., looks a little perplexed by this apparent student revolt.

Dead trees life threatening

To the editor of The Herald:
On Friday Oct. 28 1983 I reported that there were two dead trees in danger of falling and thus causing property damage or killing or injuring somebody. These trees are on Town property. This situation has been reported on previous occasions.

When I reported this situation to the Halton Hills works dept., I was told that there would be no money available to cut down the trees until January 1984. The gentleman who took my call told me that the town was aware of the problem and that there were similar problems in other parts of Georgetown.

I then asked if the town could be held responsible and therefore liable should the trees fall causing damage, injury or death. I was told the "act of God" clause would protect the town against any claim made against it. I then asked if the town would still be protected if they were informed by letter in advance of any possible occurrence of the above situation. He said that in his experience the town was always covered by the "act of God" clause.

If what this gentleman says is true, then it is a very sad situation when the town can hide behind the "act of God" clause in order to evade responsibility and at the same time save money. I would be so bold to suggest that if the town were to need some money so that some of the town councillors might attend a conference, then the money would be found. I dare to go one step further and suggest that if one of the councillors or works dept. employees lived near a similar threatening situation that action would be taken right away.

Something should be done about this and other threatening situations around Halton Hills. Life and limb should come before the pocketbook.

Come on you councillors, show us that you really care more about people than you do about money. This is not to suggest that the town councillors do not care about the people they represent, but it does suggest that sometimes someone has to light a fire beneath them in order that they sit up and take notice.
