A festive mood in Ballinafad

A large crowd attended the Christmas dance at the community centre Sat. night. Everyone seemed to be in a festive mood, dancing to the excellent music provided by Gary Foot's orchestra.

Some prizes were given out to a few lucky couples. It all added up to be an enjoyable evening for all.

Sorry to hear Mrs. John Loughnan is in Brampton hospital where she is to undergo surgery.

Mr. and Mrs. Les Jamieson had a family get-together at their home over the weekend. It was a pleasure to see Sheila, Susan, and Marion out to church on Sunday with their mother.

Christmas Communion was observed during the church service Sunday. The Sunday School scholars grouped in a circle in the front of the church as the minister lit the advent candles and explained what each one represented. The Junior Choir again sang which added to the service.

It was announced that the Christmas Eve service at the church would be at 8 p.m. There will also be a church service Christmas Day beginning at the regular time 11:45 a.m.

A joyous holiday season is wished for all.

Last minute Christmas gifts

Because of their tendency to get cold feet a nice warm pair of slippers or below 30 socks would be appreciated. For the child, anything different, like a doll from a distant land, a globe, or maybe a harmonica or telescope.

When buying gifts this year please keep one thing in mind, do yourself and fellow Canadians a favor and try to purchase products made in this country. If you can, shop locally, too.

Police beat

A 16-year old McGillivray Crescent, Georgetown, man has been charged with the break-in Nov. 1 of a Margaret Street home. Halton regional police said five video cartridge games and a Coleco Vision, worth $200, were recovered.

The man appears in Milton provincial court Jan. 15.

Corrections

On page 2 of the Dec. 14 Herald the starting date for the Halton Lung Association family asthma program was incorrect.

The correct date is Jan. 7. For more information and registration call 632-8499.

On a page 3 story in the same paper, mention was made of a car striking the Lions Memorial arena. The article meant to say the Memorial arena, named after our war veterans.

Bombs dismantled

The two rounds of vintage ammunition uncovered recently in the inventory of the Halton regional museum were declared "inert and safe", by regional police last month.

Working with experts from Canadian Forces Base Borden, police Const. Tom Roduck of the regional force's explosive unit dismantled the bombs—one 18-pound high explosive artillery shell and the other an 11-pound practice round. The shells will remain in the region's custody.

PSYCHIC RESPONSE

Carole Matthews

Dear Carole:

My daughter Paula, who is a Leo by the way, and myself, a Taurus have really been at each other's necks for the past few months. This is not like her, nor like me. Will this pattern continue or will we settle things ourselves? I really do not want the tension to continue, as we used to be very close.

A Harried Mom

Dear Harried Mom:

I only have to know your astrological signs to be aware of your problems. Both you and your daughter are stubborn in your own ways and now as you are both assessing your life styles the problems are beginning to start.

Your daughter is a very free person and needs to express herself in her home and work environments.

You are very stubborn, take this constructively, not personally, and need to see things through both her eyes and your eyes. This is certainly not easy but if you will both sit down at the right time and talk things and ideas out you will be fine.

Your daughter's career is going to require a lot of travel and time away from home, give her this willingly and she will always return as she has a lot of Cancerian signs in her, this being a home sign.

Your Virgo signs are coming through too strong and too fast for her to follow or understand. I feel that if you both back up a few spaces you will be back together as mother and daughter and friends. Don't analyze her at the moment, just listen and she will do the same.
