Parked cars smashed

Two parked cars were damaged by unknown drivers Sunday in separate incidents. Halton regional police said a 1973 Ford Maverick parked on Georgetown's McIntyre Crescent sustained $350 damage to the left front fender sometime between 5 and 7 p.m. Police said a 1981 Datsun had its left front headlight damaged to the tune of $100 between 10 and 11 a.m. on Acton's Elgin Street.

Pellet gun?

A 1982 Mercury Lynx parked on Baylor Crescent had its left rear window broken by what Halton regional police suspect was a shot from a pellet gun. The incident occurred Sunday between 10 and 10:30 p.m.

Suspects nabbed

Two Georgetown males were arrested this week in connection with a break in Feb. 22 at Kay's Grocery on Georgetown's Guelph Street. The two 15-year olds are due in Milton provincial court April 18. A cash box containing $140 had been taken and a pinball machine sustained $100 damage in the break-in, police said.

Graffiti damage

Graffiti was sprayed on with black paint on the George Kennedy Public School gym wall, rear door and two entrance doors overnight Thursday. The damage to the Weber Drive, Georgetown, school has been estimated at $300.

Charged with mischief

A man refused admittance to the Roxy Tavern kicked in the front door and broke the glass in the door on the weekend. Halton regional police said damage was $150 and a 19 year old Maple Avenue, Georgetown, man was arrested and charged with mischief to private property. The man appears in Milton provincial court April 30.

Court date set

Four Hamilton men charged with murder and conspiracy to commit murder in connection with the shooting death of Toronto's Domenic Racco, 32, appeared in Milton provincial court Monday. The four were denied bail last week and are scheduled to appear in court again April 18, at which time they'll be setting a date for a preliminary hearing.

Mr. Racco's body was discovered last December in a field north of Derry Road, east of Trafalgar Road.

Rattlesnake fall

A 21-year old Milton man who took a 40-foot fall Sunday afternoon is listed in satisfactory condition at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto. Michael Smith was seriously injured when he fell off the east end of Rattlesnake Point in Milton's Rattlesnake Conservation Area. He was transferred from Milton District Hospital to St. Mike's by the Halton-Mississauga Ambulance Service.

Traffic detour

CN is planning a major reconstruction project on the bridge at the end of Georgetown's Maple Avenue. The project will begin April 3 (Tuesday) and the bridge will be closed to traffic for six to nine weeks. Traffic wishing to reach the Maple Avenue extension will have to come up from River Drive. Pedestrians will still be able to use the bridge.

Too fast

Truck traffic is going much too fast down the Maple Ave. hill towards the post office at the Main St. intersection. That was the comment by one lady last Wednesday at a Ward 3 drop-in. She was told there are two possibilities to improve the situation, which she said was dangerous for motorists and children in the area. The police could patrol the area more frequently with radar and a sign to reduce the speed of motorists were suggested as two solutions.

Bob Rae critical of opponents

By CHRIS AAGAARD
Herald Staff
The provincial government is ignoring "dramatic life changes" which are affecting society today, Ontario NDP leader Bob Rae charged Friday night. Mr. Rae told members of the Halton-Burlington NDP Riding Association packed into the Milton United / Job Workers Hall that the government's thinking "can be found somewhere between 1943 and 1960". There are changes in the workforce, technology and family which beg a government response, Mr. Rae said. Much of his speech assailed the Tory administration for not recognizing the equality of men and women in the workforce. He pointed to the government's recent Throne Speech in which the government said it would not force business to adopt "equal pay for equal work" policies. EQUALITY
"It will be eighteen hundred years before we have genuine equality in the workforce at the rate the Tories are going," the NDP leader commented. "We take pride in being the party which has said women have the same rights to a fair salary and just as much right to work as a man has." Women are being trapped in job ghettos because they're being overlooked in terms of job and salary advancement, Mr. Rae said. He also attacked job policies which force workers to retire at 65. The social security system should be such that older workers can retire comfortably, allowing younger workers to move into the workforce. In education, the Tories have "starved" the system, Mr. Rae said by not providing retraining and skills apprenticeship programs. He also criticized government policies on reforestation, health care (by leaving nursing homes to private operators) and the environment. Lake Ontario, Mr. Rae said, is a "chemical potpourri" adding that the close relationship the government has with industrial polluters is a "recipe for short-term profit, not to protect the integrity of community life." The NDP, Mr. Rae said, places the community as the most important component of the province's future.

Councillors' voting block has a unique opportunity

By CHRIS AAGAARD
Herald Staff
None of the six locations picked as possibilities for the region's new landfill site are in Halton Hills, but councillors here may form a very important voting block when the region makes a decision later this year. Peter Walker, head of the consulting firm which is handling the region's landfill search studies, told members of the town's general committee Monday night that the "region will have one heck of a decision to make". The landfill issue is of such a "crisis" nature, Mr. Walker said, councillors will be torn between the urgency of finding a new landfill site and the chance it might be located in their respective wards. FINAL CHOICES
The landfill search, which is being carried out under the provisions of the Environmental Assessment Act, is nearing an end. Once consultants have presented council with their final choices, the region is expected to make a decision this fall. (The choice will have to be endorsed by the province). Halton Hills' regional councillors, unfettered by the political turmoil a landfill site in town would cause, should be able to "vote more freely than other councillors from other municipalities", Mr. Walker said. Candidate sites have been chosen in Milton, Oakville and Burlington. INCINERATOR
(The Ontario Waste Management Corp. (OMWC) is also looking for a site for its industrial waste incinerator or landfill site. A number of candidate sites are in Halton but none are located in Halton Hills. The two searches are separate). Mr. Walker urged local and regional councillors in Halton Hills to become well-informed of the landfill search and "not turn your backs on all the documents" because no sites in Halton Hills have been chosen. In an earlier phase of the study, there was a candidate "area" in Halton Hills, as well as quarry mentioned as a possible landfill site. They were dropped from the search when they failed to meet the social, economical and environmental criteria established by the consultants. However, regional council or the province may wish to review the sites mentioned, but not chosen. Late this summer, Halton's only remaining landfill site will close. By that time, the region hopes it will be able to expand the current dump in Burlington in the first of four phases. That's only an interim solution to the problem, Mr. Walker explained. Council's plan is for a single dump, with a capacity of about 7 million cubic meters. In addition to the landfill search, regional planners and another body of private advisors are looking at burning most of Halton's trash in incinerators, producing electricity or steam energy. BIG news
BIG Celebration administrator Margaret Vint has some good news for those still wanting to participate. Eight booths have been added to the three day celebration which takes place at the Alcott arena. Call her soon at 877-6002.
