

PROFIT SHARING?

Vying for the most almonds in their shared chocolate bar, Christian Gravelle, 9, (left) and Kevin Morrison, 9, had a hard time keeping their teeth buried in the chocolate bar. The two Harrison Public School students had the giggles. Students at the school are aiming to sell 3,300 chocolate bars to raise $3,000 for a playground. The school already has $3,500 raised toward the $8,000 cost of the new playground through past sales of place mats, cheese, baked goods and hot dog days. The project began about a year ago and principal Ray Morrison hopes to have the playground on the school property by early June.
