

IN STYLE FOR SPRING

Julie Barr of Georgetown was sporting the boyish look Sunday as she strutted down the red carpeted ramp at Norval's Riviera. Julie was one of several local models recruited for the fashion show organized by Anna Dew and Carol Barrow. Walking shorts, sweaters and driving caps will be popular this summer.

Looking smart is a key to success in the business world. Hat and cap give Elaine Morris of Georgetown a perky entrance into the workaday world. She was one of the volunteers involved in the fashion show for the mature and regular figure at the Riviera Sunday evening. Money raised from the show will put a new open heart monitor at the Georgetown Memorial Hospital. Local hairdressers, makeup artists and dressers helped the models prepare.

Public meetings to be advertised for amendments to official plan

By ANI PEDERIAN
Herald Staff

You'd better read The Herald more closely; town councillors will be asking for your comments on zoning bylaw and official plan amendments through newspaper notices.

In their general committee meeting Monday night, councillors decided to start the process of public meetings with a notice in the paper, inviting written comments on planning functions like changes to bylaws and zoning.

Following the published notice, two weeks later, councillors may, if asked to, invite the public to address their general committee meeting. At this point, council will not yet have made a final report on the amendments being requested.

Council's decision on the zoning or official plan changes will next be presented to the public in a public meeting. However, a public meeting will only be held if council decides in favor of the application to amend existing town policy.

NOT WISE

Refusing to hold a public meeting may not be a wise step for council, as Coun. Harry Levy pointed out. A decision taken to the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) may come back with the question "Where was your public meeting?"

"At any time though, it's council's right to refuse an application and refuse a public meeting, which can put them in an awkward position before the OMB," town planning director Ian Keith said.

Coun. Marilyn Serjeantson preferred having two public meetings instead of newspaper notices.

"People may say we never saw it (published notice)," she said.

Legal descriptions of a property and its size mean little to the average taxpayer who can easily overlook an application to rezone a site from single-family to apartment, Coun. Ross Knechtel said.

"We try to improve that by including a small sketch," town administrator Ken Richardson said. "We realize lot and plan number don't mean an awful lot to some people."

Flying dust for McNabb residents

By ANI PEDERIAN
Herald Staff

It'll be another summer of flying dust for the residents of Georgetown's McNabb and Albert Streets.

The second phase of an eight phase program to reconstruct the streets in the "McNabb Street drainage area" is scheduled to start June 19.

Work will be done on McNabb Street from King to Albert Streets, and on Albert Street from Guelph to Union Streets.

The deputy town engineer told councillors Monday night that the roads will be paved, but with a restricted width because of all the large old trees lining the streets in that area.

The engineering design for this summer's project is in its final stages and involves road reconstruction only.

Last summer, in a joint project with the region, storm and sanitary sewers and water distribution system improvements were made in that neighborhood.

Tenders for the project are to be called May 25. Deputy town engineer E.C. Ballinger said he expects the construction work to finish by mid-August, weather permitting.

Former Knox minister elected to top position

Herald Staff

A former minister at Georgetown's Knox Presbyterian Church was elected moderator-designate of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Rev. Alex Calder, currently of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Peterborough, is expected to be installed as moderator of the 165,000 member church at the opening of the Presbyterian Churches 110th General Assembly in June.

Rev. Calder was a Georgetown minister 30 years ago. He spent approximately 10 years serving the Knox Presbyterian Church community on Georgetown's Main and Church Streets.

He also served as padre of the Lorne Scots Regiment in Geor-town.

Rev. Calder was elected after a nation-wide vote of church members. His was one of four names put forward.

Born in Beaverton, Rev. Calder holds a B.A. from the University of Toronto and a Master of Divinity degree from Toronto's Knox College.

He was awarded a Doctor of Divinity degree by Knox College in recognition of his service to the church.

In 1944, Rev. Calder served on student mission fields in British Columbia, Alberta and New Brunswick. After ordination he ministered to several congregations in Ontario and has been at the Peterborough Church for more than 23 years.
