

CENTRAL SECURITY STATIONS can receive fire and burglary signals from your home security system and relay them to police and fire-fighting authorities for action. This kind of protection can reduce your homeowner insurance by as much as 15 percent.

Homeowner hints: A security system spells safety, savings

You can save as much as 15 percent on your homeowner insurance premiums by protecting your home against burglary and fire.

Installing a quality home security system connected to a central station staffed by personnel who call police or fire officials when your system detects smoke, fire or criminal intrusion can get you that discount.

"As soon as you have a security system installed and connected to a central station, notify your insurance company," says Roger Swanson, Vice President of ADT, a leading manufacturer and supplier of life and property protection systems.

"They'll send you a questionnaire to determine what you have and what it protects. Then, it's just a matter of time before you receive your reduction. Most insurance companies will cut your premiums by at least 10 percent."

But, even if there was no cash incentive, the peace of mind an electronic security system can provide would more than compensate, Swanson adds.

According to Swanson, there are more than 700,000 residential fires and 25 million homes are hit by crime each year.

Figures, he says, that add up to a lot of heartaches that might have been avoided by a lot of homeowners if they'd had an electronic home security system to protect their lives and property.

Give old vinyl a fresh, new life

It's a vinyl world today. We sit on vinyl, ride on it, walk on it, wear it, even tote the baby in it.

Vinyl puts wonderful convenience and color in everyday life. But when the life goes out of the color, it's a drab world. If you feel you're stuck with faded, discolored vinyl furniture and other items that are too expensive to recover or replace, and too good to discard, here's good news.

Plasti-Kote, a company that specializes in quality spray finishes for every conceivable use, has come to your rescue with Ultra Vinyl. You can restore and renew vinyl to its original bright color or spray on a fresh new color quickly, easily and very economically.

More than just a beautiful cover-up, this fast-drying spray forms a permanent bond with the original vinyl surface. It won't fade, chip, peel, crack or rub off and takes years of rough wear.

Plasti-Kote's Ultra Vinyl comes in 10 colors as well as clear for everything from furniture, wall coverings, cushions and pads to footwear, luggage, sporting goods and auto tops. Give them all a new lease on life this spring with a colorful new look.

RESTORE faded, discolored vinyl to its original beauty or give it a fresh new color with Plasti-Kote's Ultra Vinyl spray.
