

Ciderfest salutes town spirit, bicentennial

Testing the water with their wooden canoes, members of the Acton Voyageur Canoe Club entertained landlubbers at Prospect Park Sunday at noon. The club competed in the Canadian Canoe Festival in Ottawa on Canada Day and placed third overall in the junior division. Paddling Sunday were Jim Johnston, Kathy Johns, Dirk Schrader, Jeff Barkin, Sandy Monroe, Paul Tamblyn and Steve Parker.

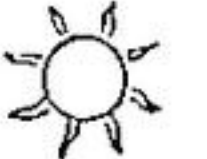

This is Jennifer Benford's first year racing in a soap box derby. Her brother started last year. With her dad's help, the 11-year old made her own go cart and is now racing with the Brampton Free Wheelers Association. Jennifer hails from Bramalea.

Although he didn't have his steed with him Saturday afternoon it was apparent to all that Nathan Ebb, 3, was fond of horses.

By 9 a.m. these bikers and runners were bright-eyed and ready to go. Gathered on Mill and Willow Streets in Acton, they were ready to take off with the sound of the muskets on either a five or a 10 kilometer blathlon. (Herald photo)

What would you do with 8,000 onions in your garden? Barb Vos of RR3 Acton brought them all with her to the Ciderfest market on Acton's Mill Street Saturday.

If you ask Michael Feenstra, 6, he hasn't been getting enough corn this summer. The youngster showed his dad just how much he likes the popular yellow vegetable with the help of Kelly McArthur who was manning the IGA booth at the Acton Leathertown Market and Ciderfest Saturday.

There were truckloads of fresh Ontario produce to come away with Saturday. Helping unload a bushel of potatoes were Erin Dicks of Caledon East and Karen Lewis, 9, of Bolton. The two were helping out Bruce Pallett who has a fruit farm in Inglewood.
