Bicentennial calendar of schools

By ROBIN BAKEWELL
Herald Staff

What originally started as a fund raising idea by Halton Board of Education transportation officer, Jim Hunt, changed over a three year period into a bicentennial project.

The result of Mr. Hunt's efforts have produced an original calendar depicting ten of the older, historic schools in the Halton area.

Drawn by Halton secondary school students, the calendar shows illustrations for all the months except July and August which, Mr. Hunt said, are not usually associated with the school year.

Authentic drawings of the old Georgetown High School and Acton Public School are included in the calendar by Debbie Newman of GDHS and Laura Brillinger of AHS, respectively.

While only 200 of the calendars have been produced by the board, at a total cost of $500, it was originally planned that 35,000 calendars be made and distributed free to all students within Halton.

This would have had to be done with the aid of a provincial grant which was available for some bicentennial projects in Ontario.

A request for $23,000 was turned down by the government who felt the project was one which could have been funded on its own and the calendars sold for profit.

Another drawback to the grant was they were limited to a maximum of $3,000, Mr. Hunt said.

The cost for additional calendars or for using the artwork on other projects will be considerably cheaper with the metal printing plates already produced.

Student artists who participated in the artwork for the calendar were each awarded a bicentennial certificate and an autographed copy of the calendar signed by board chair, Betty Fisher and director, Wally Beevor.

Speaker to talk on child discipline

Herald Staff
"Discipline is one topic parents are always wondering or worrying about," said Jan Purvis of the Halton Council Workshop Committee.

Mrs. Purvis, along with the Halton Council of Home and School Associations, The Halton Principal-Vice Principal Professional Development Committee and The Halton Board of Education will be hosting a talk by Barbara Colorosso on the subject of child discipline.

Mrs. Colorosso, from the University of N. Colorado, is a noted classroom teacher, workshop leader, author and lecturer.

She presents some very theoretical aspects on child discipline. Specific examples are presented and practical ways to deal with the problems. The parents can go home and try out some of the ideas the next day," Mrs. Purvis said.

The main theme of the talk will revolve around the fact that in many instances a child has a problem and has to take ownership of that problem, then learn to deal with the consequences, Mrs. Purvis said.

Mrs. Colorosso will be making the presentation in Burlington while she is on a tour speaking on discipline in other areas of the province including a conference in Toronto.

Barclay handles snow

Herald Staff
Snow removal from public parking lots in the Georgetown Business Improvement Area is to be done by Barclay Haulage for another year.

Passed by councillors in their committee meeting, the staff recommendation is to be formally passed Monday night.

With the responsibility for public parking lots now with the municipality, the town is making efforts to acquire leases over privately owned land used for public parking.

The Georgetown BIA are to continue cost sharing for this service. Last year, 43.5 tons of sand were used.

The agreement with Barclay Haulage is for Nov. 1 to April 30 next year.

Sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. John Murray and family, of the village, in the loss of John's mother, Mrs. Sarah Murray.

Mrs. Murray had moved here from her native Scotland a few years ago, and was living with John and Marie in her own apartment. This fall Mrs. Murray had had a trip back to England and Scotland and visited with relatives and friends, and had returned to her home here, just a few days ago.

The funeral was held at St. John's on Sunday, Nov. 18, 1984.

Dental care for poor proposed

The region's new Medical Officer of Health would like to establish dental care for low income people.

Dr. Graham Pollett recently reviewed the current community dentistry program in the region.

His report to regional council recommends low income people who earn more than welfare recipients and less than moderate income people be assured dental care at a centrally located treatment centre or clinic.

As well, Dr. Pollett recommended the region provide dental care for people over 60 years old. However, Dr. Pollett's recommendations aren't going to be acted on in the 1985 budget.

He told The Herald they would require the hiring of a dentist and would "entail quite a bit of money".

Right now, the region shares dentist Sam Green with Etobicoke, Peel and York regions for its dental health program.

Communion Sunday

By WINIFRED SMITH
Herald Correspondent
BALLINAFAD - Communion Sunday was observed during the church service. The children were given special instructions by the minister what this sacred service meant to the Christian religion and why it is observed at special times of the year.

The Junior Choir conducted by Allison McKelvey sang an anthem which was very much enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Jamieson had their family home for the weekend as daughter Sheila was celebrating a birthday.

Sore thumbs
