

Wayne Cowley decides on Colgate

by DAN RALPH
Herald Sports Editor

For the time being Wayne Cowley can return to playing hockey without looking into the stands. The 20-year-old Oakville Blades goaltender has accepted a guaranteed four-year athletic scholarship to Colgate University, Cowley, who toiled for Georgetown Geminis last season, said his decision came as a result of that school's persistence.

"They kept phoning me and showed the most interest," he said. "I was talking to a few other schools, but Colgate impressed me with the way they handled things."

Western Michigan, Princeton, Dartmouth, Vermont and Union College were the other schools vying for the services of the Oakville goalie. All but Union College are Division I schools, while the latter is a Division II university.

Cowley has been in constant contact with scouts from the above institutions, which he said made playing games a little more nerve-wracking.

"I had to play every game not knowing who was in the stands...I was taking the odd glance to see if anyone I knew was watching."

"Now I have noticed my hockey has improved. I'm playing with more confidence and I'm more relaxed."

Cowley and Blades coach Ken Moodie, a Colgate graduate, visited the American school in November and Cowley was impressed with what he saw.

"They are coached by Terry Slater, who used to coach Cleveland Barons of the National Hockey League," Cowley said. "He gets a lot of offers to coach professional hockey, but he always stays with the school."

Cowley won't have time to sit on the bench and learn the ropes. Slater has guaranteed the former Geminis a starting position.

"I don't think it puts any pressure on me," he said. "I'm really excited about it all and can't wait."

"Here I am, 20-years-old and I think I'm done and this comes up. It gives me another chance."

A career in professional hockey is in the back of Cowley's mind, and the favorable comments he received from a NHL general manager could add fuel to his fire.

"We (Oakville) were at the Pepsi-Cola tournament in November, and even though we were beat twice, I was named the top goaltender and made the all-star team. Gerry McNamara (Toronto Maple Leafs' GM) met with me after, and said I had played well and told me to stick to it," he said.

But National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) rules stipulate Cowley will be able to only play three years of varsity sport. Cowley is not sure why, but he thinks because he is 20 years old has something to do with it.

"I'm inquiring about it now, and if I can only play three years, I'm going to appeal it. I mean it doesn't hurt to try, all they can say is no and if I get my fourth year then all the better."

Last season Colgate made it to the NCAA quarter-final round.

McNally hockey team claims playoff win

At the drop of the puck for Game Three in the best-of-five series with Streetsville, Georgetown showed total domination in their skating and scoring abilities. The locals seemed to be in the right spot at the right time to knock the puck in for four unanswered goals to register a 4-0 win.

Streetsville's passing skills caused Georgetown some tense moments in the final frame as the locals seemed somewhat in a state of confusion. Ken Kosziwka and Scott McGuigan had two goals each while Chris Barrow, Kosziwka, Shawn Pearson, Greg Dobbin, Brent Wasylenko and McGuigan had assists. Goaltie Mark St. Pierre was cool when called upon and showed great style.

The fourth game was to give Georgetown the win it needed to take the series. The locals played with heart and desire, never letting up until the final buzzer for a 4-1 win. Dobbin had three goals while Andy Elliott had the other. Pearson had two assists while singles went to Ryan Pells, Dobbin, Elliott and Wasylenko. The team now meets league lead-
