

At the movies

By DANNEY RUSSELL

Sunny Davis was a cocktail waitress in a flop nightclub. She lived in an apartment with two homosexual roommates, and her philosophy of life was simple - 'Speak your mind' and 'party hardy'.

Then one day she saves the life of an Arab dignitary and is thrown into the world of politics and the media. The world of publicity, propaganda and 'protocol'.

Goldie Hawn is back in this ridiculous effort about an everyday hometown girl who becomes a nationwide heroine. The movie is almost a continuation of 'Private Benjamin' in the general plot - an everyday girl in the foreign world of politics.

You have to feel sorry for Goldie, who can't seem to get out of the part of being a beautiful blonde with an I.Q. that matches her shoe size. Bit in her stupidity, she still manages to make speeches that would shame a college professor.

'Protocol' is filmed in Washington D.C. so it's obvious that the movie reeks with patriotism. She constantly mentions the Constitution, the Bill of Rights and even recites the Declaration of Independence.

The plot is so ridiculous and so unbelievable that it's comical - and that's what 'Protocol' is - a comedy. The craziness of Goldie Hawn is the basis of the movie, and that's why it loses continuity at the end when it suddenly becomes serious.

'Protocol' is a great movie if you like comedy, but it's better suited for the States because of its "wave the flag" attitude.

Ballinafad delays date for pancake

By WINIFRED SMITH Herald Correspondent

BALLINAFAD - Rev. Dr. Bandy was detained a little longer than usual at the St. Andrew's Service on Sunday morning.

Mr. Martin Lewis took the first part of the service here. Rev. Bandy then arrived to take his place in the pulpit. It being the first Sunday in Lent, the sacred service of Communion was observed.

It was given in the way of the old methodists. A few of the congregation going up to the front of the sanctuary at a time where Dr. Bandy read the scripture and led in the ceremony.

As the weather was too bad to have the pancake supper on the proper evening of Shrove Tuesday, it was decided to have a pancake luncheon after the service on Sunday.

Quite a lot stayed and enjoyed the social time together. The girl guides and scouts assisted with the serving of the meal.

The U.C.W. are planning to sponsor a roast beef dinner March 23. Tickets will be sold in advance. There will be more particulars at a later date.

He passed away Sunday night at Guelph General Hospital. Richard is the son of Rita Shortill and the late Richard Shortill and the husband of Ruth and father of Karen, Danny and Mark.

We extend sincere sympathy to the family.

Snow storm '85

BALLINAFAD - February 1985 will be remembered as the month of the big snow storm which saw schools closed and roads blocked.

In a week we had a thaw which resulted in the snow disappearing and two days of rain giving us lots of water everywhere.

Herald quiz

No fooling Robert

A trip down to MacKenzie House in Toronto may have saved Rob Burnett from scoring less than 100 per cent on this week's Herald Quiz.

The historic building helped Mr. Burnett with question number four about Wm Lyon MacKenzie.

He scored a ten out of ten. Mr. Burnett's family have lived in Esqueving township since 1819. It's no wonder he became interested in history and decided to pursue the subject at university in Toronto.

The science and computer teacher at McKenzie-Smith Public School in Acton is also an author. He's written a book about the area called "As Good as the Wheat". It's waiting to be published by Boston Mills Press.

He lives in Halton Hills with wife Sandy and a son Joshua.

The Herald is opening their weekly quiz to the public and a prize is being offered for the top score. The winner will be notified March 6. The United Empire Loyalists' Association of Canada have provided their book "Loyal She Remains" as the first prize. The book is valued at $100.

Just answer the questions below and send them off to The Herald, 43 Guelph St., Georgetown, L7G 3Z6. We must receive your submission by the following Monday by 5 p.m. Answers will be printed in the next edition of the paper. If more than one person has the top score a special 'playoff' quiz will be implemented.
