Led by Georgetown District High School (GDHS) music teacher Harry Hamilton, the GDHS stage band played some peppy tunes for the Wintario crowd Thursday night.

Wintario hosts Faye Dance and Greg Beresford were popular even after the draw, with many youngsters and adults cramping close for an autograph from the prime-time performers. (Herald photo)

Director gets the most out of scary scenes

Neville knows best how to get the most out of a frightening scene. Director Neville Worsnop of Georgetown Little Theatre's play "Wait Until Dark" has the cast well ahead of schedule for the April 19 opening performance. Neville brings his expertise as a director to the fore front in this hair-raising thriller. You may recall that it was Neville Worsnop who directed "The Lion In Winter" which won an ACT-CO award for Best Visual Presentation.

He was also nominated for his direction and lighting design for "Dracula" and has been nominated countless times during the 14 years he has participated in Festival entries.

It must be spring, the fertilizer arrived today. The Maple Leafs are officially out of the playoffs and the Blue Jays have been declared champions before the season opens.

We all have our own personal signs of spring. Mine include: a mad desire to have my coffee out on the patio, a tendency to hum whistfully the song "It Might As Well Be Spring", an urge to open every window in the house and let fresh air pour in, and a ridiculous craving for lime popsicles.

A mad wonderlust overtakes me this time of year. I don't usually get to go anywhere. I just want to very badly. After all there are all those songs about "April in Paris" and "April in Portugal". It makes you feel that April is a great time to be elsewhere, or anywhere except where you are.

Spring makes me think about playing tennis or golf. Of course it's still too early for either. The funny part is that when the time is right I have lost all desire to participate in either activity.

Early spring is a seductive cheat. A warm summer-like day can be followed by blizzard conditions. The bright sun can lure you out without a coat only to discover the temperature is in the sub-Arctic area. It is really our own fault.

Year after year we fall for the same old tricks. You would think we would learn that spring in Canada is a sometime thing.

People are always turning to nature for signs of the changing season. They look for the first robin. Usually it's some demented bird that never made the trip south.

I look for the first house flies buzzing around my home. Where they come from I never know. But suddenly there they are, a harbinger of new beginnings.

An Oakville acquaintance tells me in his area a sure sign of spring is a mass death wish on the part of the indigenous squirrels. They must wake up from their winter's nap and have an uncontrollable urge to fling themselves in the paths of motor vehicles.

As I said earlier we all have our own personal signs of spring. Be yours live flies or dead squirrels, fertilizer or whatever, enjoy them because the anticipation of spring is half the fun.

Neville however does not stop at directing or behind the scenes activities, he is also an accomplished actor having appeared on stage as early as 1961 in a show staged in Blackpool, England.

At the movies

By DANNEY RUSSELL

They've got to clean up the worst crime district in the world. And that's a problem: they're the worst police force in the country.

'Police Academy 2 - Their first assignment' marks the return of the wild and crazy guys from Police Academy. It includes Steve Guttenberg, Bubba Smith, Michael Winslow and George Gaynes along with newcomers Colleen Camp and Howard Hesseman.

The movie is about how the recruits from Police Academy are assigned to clean up a town that is being terrorized by a street gang that is led by a neurotic and slightly warped weirdo. The result is many hilarious confrontations between the two.

As usual, Michael Winslow used his bagful of sound effects to add many laughs to 'Police Academy 2'.

It's hard to say exactly what makes the Police Academy series so fun to watch. It may be the characters, who are all funny in their own way. Or it may be the use of such an original script and plot. Whatever the reason is, everybody should enjoy it. If you saw the first movie, then this one is just as funny, but if you haven't, you will enjoy 'Police Academy 2' just as much.

Searching for the past

The Esquing Historical Society is hosting an open house of the Society's archives in the Georgetown library April 10.

Since they were moved to the library two years ago, the collection has grown dramatically. This will be the first opportunity for members and the general public to view the many new additions.

The meeting will start in the basement of Knox Church, Georgetown at 7:30 when Mark Rowe and Elaine Robinson Bertrand will discuss research in land records.

At 8:30 the meeting will move to the library where Walter Lewis will be talking about the collection.

Don't miss 'War ...'

The 'War of 1812' is still going on at the Georgetown Library. This is the first of a spring series of exhibits which will be at the Library each for only two weeks. There isn't much time left before the "pipes of the Iroquois" will arrive April 4.

Pipes today are treated as very ordinary objects - but this was not the case with the pipes of the Iroquois. For the Iroquois, pipes and smoking had deep cultural and religious significance, and we know that tobacco was an integral part of almost every recorded ceremony.

The Iroquois believed that some smoke, lifted up to the heavens, could carry their messages to the Great Spirits.

Everyone is encouraged to visit the Georgetown Library and learn more fascinating facts about "The War of 1812", and "The Pipes of the Iroquois".
