Although computers have been in the schools for many years, Centennial Public School got a special treat last week when a complete set of personal computers arrived on a temporary basis from the Board of Education to learn from. Students take turns in groups of 20 learning new techniques. Seen here are (back row) Dale McNiven, David Porter, (front row) Nicole Debrou and Annette Willson.

Marketing students' skills are challenged

Four GDHS marketing students - Teresa Maslach, Mike Delguidice, Ana Piqueras, and Shelley Braysby, recently participated in the Marketing Education Club of Canada (MECCA) Competency Based Competitive Events (CBCE) held at the Scarborough Town Centre.

the competencies which will be evaluated. A typical competition series includes a written comprehensive exam, together with two "activities" or "demonstrative-role playing events."

Participants receive recognition for achievement in each event and in the series as a whole. The comprehensive exam is a multiple choice test of 100 items. Items (multiple choice) are developed especially for each series based on the knowledge, skills and attitudes associated with the particular occupation, i.e. Apparel and Accessories, Service Station Retailing, Advertising Services, General Marketing, General Merchandise, Food Marketing and Food Services, etc.

Teresa Maslach is among thirty students selected from Ontario CBCE's to participate in the National DECA Career Development Conference of the Distributing Education Clubs of America, a student organization of which MECCA is affiliated. It will be held in San Francisco, May 2-5 and is expected to have over 6000 students and advisors in attendance from the U.S. and Canada.

Award named after Esquising resident For students

The Halton Region Museum and the Halton Board of Education invite entries from students in Halton Board schools for the annual Catherine T. Hainer McMartin Bursary.

Upper Canada in the 1840s and Canada today", "Is Federation as valid a political system today for Canada as it was in 1867?", "The influence of the natural environment on the development of Regionalism in Canada".

Prizes are awarded for the best entries from kindergarten to Grade 6; Grades 7 and 8; Grades 9 and 10; Grades 11 to 13. In the elementary school grades the prizes are a plaque and a good quality book on Canada, while the secondary school students receive a plaque and $100.

People wishing further information about the Bursary or possible topics may call the Halton Region Museum at 878-3232. Catherine T. Hainer McMartin was born in Esquising Township and attended schools in Limehouse and Georgetown. She received her teaching certificate from the University of Toronto and some time later moved to the Western Provinces, eventually settling in Calgary.

Each school in the Halton Board of Education has been provided with pamphlets outlining details of the Bursary. Some of the suggested topics include: "My community: the way it was", "Why I am proud to be a Canadian", "Careers in

However, she never forgot her ties with Halton. In the closing years of her life she arranged for the bursary with the Halton Region Museum and the Halton Board of Education in the hope of encouraging young people to study and enjoy the unique history, geography and culture of Canada. Mrs. McMartin passed away in 1981 having taught young Canadians until her 90th year and shortly after the first awards in the Bursary program were distributed.

High school gets woman vice principal

Georgetown District High School will have a woman vice-principal this September.

The Halton board of education has named Barbara Singleton to the post. She comes from General Brock High School in Burlington, where Mrs. Singleton has been vice-principal for over three years.

Acton High School will also have a new woman vice-principal, but not until next February. Carol Powadiuk is the new appointee to replace Lyn McLaren who is being transferred to E.C. Drury High School in Milton.
